Reapportionment and Budget Matters Face New Legislators

By BOB HEMINGWAY

San Mateo County's two freshman state legislators go into official action for their constituents for the first time when the Legislature reconvenes and reorganizes Monday, January 4.

Democrat Arlen Gregorio, the county's new state senator, and Republican Dixon Arnett, new Twenty-sixth District assemblyman, will join veteran Leo Ryan, Democratic Twenty-seventh District assemblyman, to represent the county's interest.

Gregorio and Arnett concur that the major matters they expect to find themselves in following reorganization of the legislature are reapportionment, budget and tax reform.

Although Gregorio and Arnett are of different political parties they are not too far apart in political philosophy, according to the new senator.

"We don't disagree on too much," Gregorio states. "I'm confident we can work very well together."

Arnett predicts that other issues will "wait in the wings" until the legislature has coped with the reapportionment matter which will see the creation of four new Congressional districts in Southern California and one new district he says will be "sandwiched" some way between San Francisco and San Jose.

The new assemblyman foresees a cooperative effort between the Republicans and Democrats in establishing the new districts, noting that, although the Democratic majority could establish the redistricting any way they want, the Republican governor could impose the veto, necessitating the securing of a two-thirds majority to override any veto.

Both new legislators agree that some type of tax reform is a necessity. Arnett predicts that such a measure will pass and that it will be more closely aligned to school finance than the bill presented last year by Governor Ronald Reagan and defeated by one vote in the legislature.

There is going to be more cooperation on tax reform this coming session, Arnett predicts, with the "understanding that no one is going to get everything he wants."

He goes on to state that the "public won't stand another session without a tax reform bill."

In a similar vein, Gregorio favors reduction in real property taxes, with increased state aid for education possibly coming from sales or income tax sources.

Gregorio, who defeated Republican Carl A. Britschgi for the State Senate post in last month's general election, is seeking appointment to the judiciary, revenue and taxation, ecology, transportation and health and welfare committees.

Arnett, who ran for Britschgi's assembly job after the latter quit to seek the Senate position being vacated by Republican Richard J. Dolwig, is requesting revenue and taxation, education, natural resources or government organization as his committee assignments.

Both new legislators will be favoring stiffer laws and penalties concerning the sale of narcotics.

Arnett says he would like to see a new omnibus bill on narcotics paralling a recently enacted federal bill. This would reclassify types of narcotics and more relate punishments to the crimes, making it tougher on those convicted of sale of "hard" drugs and imposing double penalties on those convicted of sale to persons 18 years of age or younger.

Gregorio would favor legislation to "get at the sources — crack down on people who make the money, the commercial conveyors."

Both favor an intensified education program relative to drug and narcotics use, and both would favor having a law designating a first conviction for use of marijuana a misdemeanor, rather than a felony.

The new legislators both predict efforts to secure legislaton for some type of regional government controls.

Arnett envisions a bill which would provide for a regional governmental agency with directly elected representatives, powers of taxation and eminent domain, but with those powers specifically prescribed and limited. He also would favor, the new assemblyman states, a regional agency plan for control of disposal of solid waste.

Gregorio says he would "like to explore" establishing some sort of regional and statewide planning procedures.

Both men favor environmental legislation designed to preserve open space, especially on the state's coast.

Arnett states he would like to see stronger air pollution controls, mentioning study of possible tax incentives to encourage industries to invest in pollution control mechanisms.

Arnett says the state probably will get a coastside control bill, but doubts that any type of bill with a strong moratorium provision will pass.

He would favor, the assemblyman goes on to say, formation of a regional open space commission.

Airport Unit to Form Link With Citizens

A citizens committee aimed at serving as a communications link between residents of the North County and the San Francisco Airport Access Project Board of Control will soon be established.

A total of 24 members—three from each city—will be picked by North County city councils during the next few weeks.

In addition, one member from each of San Mateo County's five districts will be appointed by the Board of Supervisors.

San Francisco supervisors may also choose to select up to five members at-large from their county and city.

The organization also extended an invitation to "other interested people" to join in the committee's initial meeting, expected sometime in February.

The total number of citizen-members is still open to debate.

However, Board of Control directors meeting in Millbrae Wednesday morning agreed the committee was an integral part of the over-all transit project—especially in the "selling" of the system idea to the general public.

It was suggested by Project Coordinator Keith Bernard that the committee meet monthly.

Business Growth Rate Declines in San Mateo County

By DENNIS BLUNDEN

This was supposed to be a bad year for business in San Mateo County, and for a lot of people it was. But all the gloomy talk tends to obscure a simple fact: the problem has not been lack of growth but a decline in the rate of growth.

For the past few years, the business indicators for the county have been going up steadily. More population, more sales, more new plants and businesses, more employment, more money. Business and personal plans were based on these built-in growth factors.

This year the money tree stopped growing so fast. Some of its branches produced no new growths. Some withered. The result was a dislocation in the county economy. People who had become used to banking on a lush growth every year suddenly had to get out the pruning shears.

This was translated into a severe employment slump in the electronics and space industries on the Peninsula, a serious decline in employment in the construction industry, a cutback in the booming airline business, a tailing off of plant expansion and the movement of new plants into the county, and a slowdown in population growth. Many unskilled workers found they were expendable and some skilled and executive employes had an unpleasant shock: they were expendable, too.

But behind the unpleasantness are some reassuring facts.

Residential and commercial construction actually were up over 1969. Retail sales held up. Air travel has not slumped drastically — but its rate of growth has. The electronics and space industries are readjusting to get away from over-dependence on government contracts and take advantage of new consumer markets.

Unemployment is still high, but more people than ever were employed in the county in 1970 (an estimated 161,000, exclusive of government, compared with 156,000 in 1969)..

People have been saving money at a high rate. If they decide to spend it, retailers will have an excellent year. Banks have more money to lend, are less fussy about loans, and interest rates are coming down.

To offset a decline in the rate of industrial expansion and the number of new plants locating in the county, industrial parks are still growing, service companies and public utilities are expanding, the warehouse and distribution and administrative-executive offices segments of the economy are growing.

The banks are not forecasting

S.S.F. Man Arrested in Hit and Run

A South San Francisco man was arrested on Monday on suspicion of felony drunk driving and hit and run.

Police booked Julius Kondrat, 51, of 123 Springwood Drive, at 1:30 a.m.

Authorities said a vehicle driven by Kondrat hit the rear of a car stopped in the left turn lane of Spruce and El Camino.

Police said the Kondrat car failed to stop. It continued another half mile into the Brentwood area of the city, striking the sides of three parked vehicles. The car stopped when it hit a fourth parked car head on, police said.

Kondrat suffered cuts on his chin. Two passengers in the car Camino intersection were unhurt.

County Schools: Microcosm of Educational Strife in the 70's

By JOHN HORGAN

The past year was a time of increasingly bitter and troublesome strife for the educational systems of San Mateo County.

The issues were many: desegregation busing, flexible scheduling, sensitivity training, tax rates, students' rights, drugs, illegitimate births, abuses of the American flag, campus violence, family life education and a range of other related topics.

All of these concerns were hardly unique to this county. Nearly every community throughout the State of California is learning to deal with at least some of them.

But, here in this affluent county, where young people are perhaps blessed with more material benefits and all the attendant side effects of the relaxed suburban way of life, problems in education tend to be amplified.

The schools, both public and private, inherit all of society's positive and negative aspects.

If there is a current trend towards rampant drug abuse or a rise in venereal disease in society, the schools will feel it as much or more as any other institution.

And the schools will also be looked upon as a sort of haven of last resort to deal with society's troubles.

San Mateo County is no exception. It too has seen its schools become more and more bogged down in treating social illnesses rather than in teaching and providing a place where young people can learn.

This situation here has created a distinct pair of philosophical opponents who wage daily warfare over what the schools in the county shall become.

Liberals and conservatives are constantly thrusting their necessarily opposing viewpoints on the harassed and beleaguered boards of trustees, school administrators and on the individual teachers themselves.

Many meetings of certain boards became mere podiums for political rhetoric during 1970 in this county.

At the meetings of the Sequoia Union High School District board, concern over desegration dominated the year. The board finally decided on a controversial mandatory busing system which will allegedly come close to making Ravenswood High School in East Palo Alto somewhat more integrated than it is now. Ravenswood is now overwhelmingly black while the other five schools in the district are mainly white.

But the plan is being strongly opposed by both the blacks and white communities in that district.

Many black people in East Palo Alto, especially the student leaders at Ravenswood, have said they want to keep a black identity at their community high school. They have told the board members they will resist any attempts to cut off their community identity.

Many white people who have children attending places like San Carlos and Woodside High Schools have told the board (on no uncertain terms) that they too abhor the concept of mandatory busing to achieve racial balance.

Those in favor of the plan have termed the resistance to it as "racist" in character.

To further hamper attempts to desegregate the district, there were scattered incidents of racial violence in various high schools in the district in 1970.

One particular incident at San Carlos High School in which a white student was knifed by a black student caused great strain in that nearly all-white

BART Gives Priority to D.C. Garage

A top priority tag has been placed on the construction of a parking garage at the Bay Area Rapid Transit station in Daly City.

The executive Committee of the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) has approved the multi-level garage which will cost an estimated $5.2 million.

Parking projects such as the one proposed for Daly City may be funded under the Federal Highway Act of 1968. This relatively new law authorizes use of certain highway funds for parking in areas served by public transportation.

It is aimed at reducing auto congestion in downtown areas by providing sufficient parking adjacent to public transportation facilities.

The BART station garage on Knowles would provide space for 1480 cars.

Two other BART parking lots, in Walnut Creek and Oakland, were given second priority by ABAG.

12 File for Council Seats in San Bruno

Twelve candidates, three of them women, have filed for a San Bruno city council seat in the scheduled March 2 recall election.

The breakdown has three persons filing for Mayor Neil Christal's seat, four seeking Councilman Ted Long's post and five vying for the seat held by Councilman Dick Griffith.

Those filing against Christal are Orville Wycoff of 2471 Trenton Drive, who spearheaded the recall movement, Stephen A. Diamond, of 853 Seventh Avenue, and Roberta Jean Peck of 115 Merced Drive.

Anthony Governale of 421 Chestnut Avenue, who failed in the April council race heads the list seeking to fill Long's post.

Others are Charles R. Hanley of 481 Elm Avenue, who also has been a candidate in past council races, James Hensel Jr. of 121 DeSoto Way, presently a planning commissioner, and Dudley Marshall of 340 Courtland Drive.

San Bruno Park School District Trustee Margaret Kozkowski of 2681 Valleywood Drive is one of two female challengers for Griffith's post. The other is Ruth Harris of 2420 Bennington Drive. She took out papers and filed just before the noon deadline Thursday.

Former Councilman Robert B. Price of 1305 Kains Avenue heads the list of men filing against Griffith. Others are Henry B. Siddall of 2445 Rollingwood Drive and Dan Pecoraro of 2241 Valleywood Drive, both early filers.

Two persons who took out nomination papers failed to return them with the necessary five signatures of registered voters. They are Nicholas Papadakis of 2380 Valleywood Drive and Dan P. Comarote of 2451 Trenton Drive. Both indicated they would file against Griffith.

He's Home as Firemen Hunt Driver

South San Francisco firemen and California Highway patrolmen searched in vain for a possible driver three hours Thursday in the cold and muddy water of Colma Creek.

The driver, Richard Donovan, 117 Arden Drive, South San Francisco, was discovered later at home calmly sipping a cup of coffee in front of his Christmas tree. He told officers that he had managed to swim free of the car after it plunged off the Produce Avenue off-ramp in South San Francisco and landed in Colma Creek.

Firemen and officers dived into the deep eight-foot water after the car had been spotted by a passerby. They thought the driver may have been pinned in the sealed car. When they finally towed the car to the road they discovered there was no one in it.

Recall Committeeman Quits To Work for Mayor's Seat

San Bruno council candidate Orville Wycoff has resigned as head of the San Bruno Recall Committee to campaign for Mayor Neil Christal's seat.

Wycoff charged that Christal as presiding member of the council should have demanded that established procedures be followed in the appointment of the city manager.

"He chose to ignore the need for full participation of the entire council," said Wycoff. "He helped create the disharmony, division and distrust which now prevails on the council, and among the citizens of San Bruno."

Wycoff said recall is the only way to restore faith in the council.

"After the recall has been completed the (new) council should immediately return to the selection of a qualified city manager," said Wycoff.

"If Mr. (Christopher) Menkin does not resign ,he should be relieved by the council at its first (new) meeting."

Bitter, Troublesome School Strife

community just at the time when the board was trying to make clear its position on busing and integration in general.

One member of the board held up a butcher knife at a meeting after the incident to dramatize it and was severely criticized later for "pouring gasoline on the fire" of an already tense situation.

Other school districts in the county were handling their integration problems with somewhat more aplomb than Sequoia's board, however. It must be noted, too, that East Palo Alto is a special case (being populated mostly by blacks) and that other districts don't have to deal with it.

But other districts, both high school and elementary, continued to have trouble with the question of family life education, part of which was a sex education course which offended many parents.

That issue has been blunted somewhat throughout the county's public schools by the simple ploy of avoiding it. Most schools stay clear of family life education courses at the elementary school level. The high schools deal with it in hygiene and other classes.

The Catholic schools in this county actually handle family life data with more candor than do the public schools.

Instruction about venereal disease, unwed motherhood and other related subjects are handled in much the same way at the high school level.

Drug abuse, a problem which has afflicted the county's youth population at a staggering rate, is currently being fought in the schools in a variety of informational and disciplinary ways.

Films, some of which were made by local schools themselves, are a primary source of information about drugs.

Other issues of national importance intruded onto the county's school scene in 1970.

When American forces invaded Cambodia last spring students demonstrated peacefully throughout the county. They also took part in the national day of ecological concern last year as well.

Particularly significant was a Cambodia protest waged by the students at the College of San Mateo.

They marched from their campus on the hills west of the city to city hall in San Mateo where they held a calm rally. So moved was the city's mayor that he pledged he and the city council would prepare a letter to the President which would echo the feelings expressed by the young people on that day.

The council later (much later) backed down a bit from that position and sent off a note to the President praising him for his peace plan in Southeast Asia.

Perhaps as an outgrowth of that demonstration and others like it across the country (many of which were violent), taxpayers in the county last year put on a demonstration of their own. They voted to deny the junior college district further monies for expansion.

District officials have now determined to seek an 11-cent increase in the upcoming March 2 election. As an outgorwth of all this uncertainty, CSM President Robert Ewigleben quit to return to a school in Michigan.

Ironically, just as those JC officials were preparing to launch their campaign to sway the voters in their favor, it was revealed that the student body president of Skyline College, one of the three campuses, had been hanging the American flag upside down in the student body offices.

This caused an uproar throughout the county and the student, Dan Tobias, was expelled on a technicality—he had falsified his admission papers.

The chances of the county securing a four-year state college appeared dim as the year ended too.

A state advisory board voted down a recommendation from the state's board of trustees which approved the establishment of such a college.

Money—or the lack of it—was also a problem for private schools. The Catholic system was reporting grave financial difficulties as the year ended. There were reports that some schools would have to cut back their programs severely to meet increasing costs.

One solution, supported vigorously by many Catholic educators, was Governor Reagan's proposed credit program where a student would be able to go to any school he desired and the school would be reimbursed for it by the state.

There is considerable doubt whether public school interests would allow that plan to be implemented, however.

One major bit of optimistic news from 1970, as far as educators and many parents were concerned, was the election of Wilson Riles as State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

In replacing the volatile and sometimes devisive Dr. Max Rafferty in that sensitive post, many feel that Riles will indeed work to bring back what he said he would during the campaign: Quality education.

For Riles, and others interested in the future of education in this county and in the state, the issue was not "Liberalism vs. Conservatism" or "Permissiveness vs. Dogmatism" as some had tried to paint it.

Rather, Rile said, the situation must become one of providing sound education for all of the state's children.

Education—not political or moral indoctrination—is the key, Riles said.

Few in this county would disagree with him.

Business Growth Rate Down

a new boom but they are predicting a better economy in 1971, both nationally and in the state.

The predictions are cautious chiefly because nobody is quite sure how successful the Nixon administration will be in controlling in flation, promoting a business upturn, and getting out of Vietnam.

National policy for people in San Mateo County is not just something to read about. The decisions in Washington can take your job away.

The decision to cut back on aerospace projects was one basic cause of the troubles for Peninsula space firms. Anti-inflation measures helped put interest rates out of sight and upset the building industry. The general slowdown and high rates caused businesses to cut back on expansion, and business travel, which upset the airline industry. What comes out of Washington will mean the difference between a good year and a bad year in 1971. This year demonstrated clearly that the county is vulnerable to national policy changes.

Within each industry in the county there are separate stories of how they have had to readjust to changing national and local conditions.

In construction, where the Building Trades Council estimates employment has been down 20 per cent, some key changes have shown up. Residential building is up over last year, but most of the business has been apartments. Commercial building is also up. But this is not as good as it sounds for all tradesmen. Automation and new techniques have reduced the number of men needed, particularly carpenters, on big jobs. But more sheet metal men are needed because of the swing to air conditioning.

Home building is supposed to boom next year, but the boom talk in the county is modified by the lack of land and the high prices necessary. Foster City and Redwood Shores are bright spots. The Coastside is stirring but will take time to get going.

With money loosening up, a home building upswing is expected in April, May and June. Commercial building is not expected to gain much.

The airline industry is a classic example of how national policy affects the county and trickles down to the man on the job.

While vacation travel has held up, the business travel decline hit continental traffic. Fewer trips, fewer sales meetings and conferences. This has reduced day-to-day business travel in and out of San Francisco International Airport and meant less demand for rooms in the multi-million-dollar string of new motels and hotels along the Bayshore freeway. The competition for business among these motels is very severe right now. With fewer guests, fewer staff is needed, and less money goes to the cities from the motel room tax.

Shifts and Budgets Face Lawmakers

Gregorio also predicts "important environmental legislation" for coast and open space preservation.

Arnett sees the necessity of a comprehensive review of medical care, with the state redefining what it should provide and trying to fund for that.

"It won't be giving an open-end promise and not be able to provide the financing," he states. "The same goes for social welfare."

Arnett indicates that he will be pushing hardest for an omnibus narcotics bill, along with "pressing for reform in school finance."

He suggests as worthy of consideration a combination of state and local income tax, the latter levied by school districts, to provide school financing needs. This, he said, could permit the abandonment of total reliance on property taxes for school finance.

Gregorio sees increased state aid for education and would "like to look at sales or income tax" as a means of providing it.

Both freshmen legislators favor some sort of legislative reform to increase the efficiency of the state's legislative body.

Gregorio expresses the need for modernization of the communications of the Senate.

"It's been operating as a type of private club," he states, "and it needs the tools to bring us into the 1970's."

Gregorio cites a need for more extensive research facilities to replace too heavy reliance on lobbyists, and for electronic voting procedures such are as employed by the Assembly.

Arnett would like to see legislative committees required to conform to the Brown Act relative to secret sessions. Committee meetings should be open to the public, and committee sessions should be subject to roll call votes, he says.

Also, the new assemblyman favors suspension of all other business for a 30-day period at budget time in order that all effort could be devoted to that subject.

Operating the Legislature on a biannual basis would streamline the procedures and eliminate the necessity of reintroducing bills which didn't get passed in the previous session.

Another thing, to facilitate matters, Arnett states, would be to organize the Legislature and make committee appointments in December, "so we can be ready to go in January."

However, he said, that proposal has been turned down by the "old guard."

Gregorio has in mind legislation he would like to see passed relative to election procedures reform.

First of all, he states, it will be necessary to authorize the vote of 18-year-olds in state elections.

He also would like to explore some type of limit on expenditure in election campaigns, noting the "great advantage" to the incumbment. It should be possible, Gregorio says, to provide a facility for communication on an equal basis, possibly on ballot statments or perhaps by providing mailings for candidates.

The new state senator plans to follow the procedure introduced by the county's congressman, Pete McCloskey, and hold regular "constituent days" where he will answer questions and report on happenings in Sacramento.

Both Arnett and Gregorio see a long arduous session, and both have pledged to work to the fullest of their ability for the interest of San Mateo County and its people.

Sex Education Drive Urged for S.M. County

Citing an "enormous cost" in dollars and human suffering, a task force of the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of San Mateo County yesterday called on public schools and private institutions to undertake intensive contraceptive and sex education programs.

A two-month study conducted by the 20-member task force, which included students from College of San Mateo found that "known costs of the lack of contraceptive prophylactic knowledge will probably exceed $2 million in 1970 in San Mateo County."

Unrecorded costs would swell the dollar total considerably.

"In addition," the report states, "there is the untold mental anguish of young people and their families where an unwanted conception has occurred."

The task force found that:

— The incidence of gonorrhea has reached "epidemic" proportions in San Mateo County.

— Illegitimate births have increased by 15 per cent since 1965, while total births have declined.

— The number of therapeutic abortions has increased steadily and probably exceeded 500 in the first six months of this year.

"We feel," the task force reported, "that the long-run solution to our current crisis is comprehensive human-life education in the integrated school curriculum from kindergarten through senior year of high school.

"However, immediate steps must be taken to provide relevant contraceptive information through any means possible to those of our young people who desire it."

On that basis, the group recommended:

—That its findings be presented to each high school and intermediate school board in the county, "urging them to adopt contraceptive and sexual education programs which would be made available to all students." Use of the programs would be voluntary.

—That voluntary and private institutions, both religious and secular, "Undertake sex and contraceptive education programs on their own and to make such information available wherever possible." Envisioned are "rap sessions" and "sidewalk information centers" for young people who desire the information "and have no other recourse to obtain it."

"The recommendations are neither radical nor revolutionary," the report states. "They do not coerce young people into studying the physiology of procreation and contraception, but offer an alternative for those who desire it.

"We feel that the taxpayers of San Mateo County can no longer sustain the increasing economic and social costs associated with the manifestations of the lack of such education."

The task force report was made public this morning at a press conference in the Health Planning Council's headquarters in Redwood City. Norman Wherrett, council president, said the group will make an effort to carry out the recommendations.

Suspects Captured During D.C. Burglary

Dr. George Biederman's offices are next door to the Hodcarriers' Local 36 offices at 2380 Junipero Serra Boulevard in Daly City.

Only a plasterboard wall separates the two offices.

Three South Peninsula men Sunday forced their way into the Hodcarriers' offices by breaking through a second story window.

Once inside they kicked their way through a wall into Dr. Biederman's rooms, police said.

Dr. Biederman, a specialist in helping people reduce, reportedly stocks a quantity of reducing pills in his office. Police suspect this was what the trio was after.

Daly City Police Sergeant Ralph Warren said a neighborhood resident spotted the men entering the building and called police.

Arrested inside Dr. Beiderman's office were John Martin Jr. of San Jose, David Powell, also of San Jose, and Michael Hukkt of Los Gatos.

They were charged with burglary.

3 Men Shot in Daly City; Won't Talk

The shooting of three men on a Daly City street corner December 22 remained a mystery.

Police said the trio refused to talk about the incident which occurred at Mission and Templeton streets about 8 p.m.

Brothers Virgil Crosby, 25, and Craig Crosby, 22, of 1050 Schwerin street, and Jerry Cimino, 22, of 578 San Diego avenue were shot by a small caliber gun.

The weapon size could not be determined immediately, police said. They suspect it was a .22 caliber revolver.

San Francisco police were first called into the investigation after the victims were taken to Mission Emergency Hospital for treatment.

When it was determined the incident actually happened in San Mateo County, Daly City police took over.

Cimino was shot in the left elbow and right little finger. Craig Crosby was shot twice in the right buttocks. His brother, Virgil, suffered gunshot wounds of the abdomen.

Investigators found blood in an area on Irvington street, one block from where the men told police the shootings took place.

Volunteer Service is Gift

Mrs. Frances Smith of Pacifica has learned why giving volunteer help to the American Red Cross is one of the most meaningful Christmas gifts. She learned four years ago that the gift of her time to handicapped youngsters has proven to be a gift to herself.

"When my son, Jay, went into the Army, I realized the time in my life was spent mostly on myself or my family. A friend of mine, Joan Krake, was a driver for the Coastside Region of the Red Cross and got me interested in volunteering, too." As a volunteer driver, Mrs. Smith drives handicapped children to and from the Belameda pool in Belmont where they spend one hour in play group activities.

The organization that arranges these swim-play sessions is the Volunteer Swim Teachers for handicapped children, composed of volunteers who teach basic swim skills and help the children enjoy the pleasure of water freedom. Formed in 1964, the group hopes to make this service available to all handicapped children in San Mateo County area.

"I pick up the children each Monday at the Del Norte School in San Bruno about 1:30 and drive them to the pool. There the Volunteer Swim Teachers take over responsibility with men and women for wheelchair transportation, dressing and swim instruction." After the swim program, she drives some of the children home and some are picked up by their parents. Mrs. Smith estimates that she is happily occupied from 1:30 to 4 p.m. on Mondays.

Mrs. Smith looks forward to Monday afternoons. Not only does she perform a valuable service, but she enjoys the chance to meet other interesting parents, volunteers and children. "I love working with the children. The kids depend on me and I haven't missed but once in four years." She emphasized that being a volunteer Red Cross driver is an opportunity to get to know and work with many different people in a positive atmosphere. "Most of my volunteer hours are spent with happy people whose problems aren't looked upon as disabilities. Driving for the Red Cross is an ideal way to serve the community. "She states, "because we have a choice of hours." There are many people in need of transportation, and some drivers require only one hour of a volunteer's time.

Mrs. Smith is not a newcomer to volunteering. She says that growing up in a neighborhood where there was a "potpourri of nationalities" and with parents who believed in helping their neighbors, offered many opportunities for service. "We often pitched in and helped a neighbor who was sick or had problems," she states. She still does many things for her neighbors such as driving them to the doctor or weeding their gardens for them. Currently she and her husband, Paul and son Jay live at 371 Nelson Avenue.

MONDAYS ARE HAPPY days for Mark Dreier, 8, and Mrs. Frances Smith. Mrs. Smith drives Mark and other children to swim-play activities at local pools. Mark lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dreier, at 22 E. Ridge Circle in Pacifica.

Hotel Tax Increase Proposed for S.S.F.

By BOB PETERSON

A four per cent tax would be added to the room cost should Mary and Joseph stop along South San Francisco's hotel row tonight.

If they were to wait until Friday, there still may be a room, but the tax could jump to five per cent.

This one per cent tax increase was proposed last week to the council by Fred Rapp, co-owner of the Holiday Inn.

Rapp suggested that in addition to increasing the room tax rate the city allocate $40,000 a year for the purpose of "selling South San Francisco to visiting people."

The hotel man said money from the four per cent tax is accumulating in a separate fund right now. The money is used basically for city beautification projects.

Rapp asked the councilmen for a three-year program (of $40,000 a year) "to prove we (hotel owners) can benefit ourselves and South San Francisco."

The $40,000 would be spent only with the approval of the city council. Rapp said that although he was speaking for himself, he had contacted some of his competitors and was "reasonably certain they would be in accord."

South San Francisco already donates $10,000 annually to the County Fair and Convention Bureau.

Rapp said he would want this payment to continue at least for one more year. He said next year's promotion plans are to divorce the hotel bureau from the fair bureau.

North County cities in the last few years have been critical of the expenditure of their 25 per cent contribution in hotel taxes because they felt the north end of the county was not receiving adequate benefit.

"There are more hotels in South San Francisco than any city on the Peninsula and no one knows it," said Rapp. "We should promote South San Francisco as the Hotel City, not just the Industrial City."

Councilman Frank Mammini said it is necessary to help the city's hotel operators. "If they lose revenue, we lose revenue," said Mammini. He noted that San Francisco plans to build 14,000 more rooms next year and indicated this room construction could take away from South San Francisco business. Mammini has been critical of the extension of BART to the airport for the same reason.

It was noted that improvement of South Airport Boulevard, where the hotels are located, could lead to a "hotel park" atmosphere such as the present "industrial park" of Cabot, Cabot and Forbes.

Two Nabbed in Burglary

Broadmoor police arrested two burglary suspects in the attic of the Cypress Hills Golf Course's Bunker Room early on Wednesday.

Police Lt. Merrill E. Baxley said he and Patrolman Charles Fleischer booked Gregory A. Kiefer, 19, of 89 Rice Way, Daly City, and his 17-year-old brother, Larry.

Baxley said Fleischer saw that pins had been removed from the door hinges of a back door to the Colma establishment.

Knowles Ave. Report Set in Daly City

A comprehensive report aimed at answering questions about acquisition of Knowles Avenue will be submitted to the Daly City City Council on January 21.

City Manager David Rowe said the report will concern itself only with the area encompassing Knowles and Los Banos Avenues, site of a road improvement project.

There have been increasing rumors about buying of homes by the city and the future of the area. Rowe said he hopes to put these rumors to rest with his report.

In a letter to the city council Albert Jenkin, chairman of the newly organized Hillcrest Development Association, urged the city to aid displaced residents in locating housing and to pay a "replacement value" for a condemned home rather than "fair market value."

Jenkin argued the present homeowner will not be able to find comparably priced housing in the city after their homes are taken for the road project.

Several realtors, including Mayor Bernard (Bud) Lycett, disputed this claim by Jenkin.

Jenkin also asked that the city pay replacement moving costs to all persons — homeowners and renters — affected by the acquisition.

Lycett said one of the problems that "bothers me" was whether the city should give similar considerations on Jenkin's demands to newcomers as well as longtime residents of the area.

Councilman Frank Pacelli pointed out that rumors were flying fast and wild in the Knowles area. He said it was "essential that we don't fool anybody" on details of the project.

Muni Line Recommended for BART Airport Link

The old San Francisco muni line 40 was recommended as the best possible route for a transit link between Daly City and San Francisco International Airport Wednesday morning.

A corridor selection report presented by engineering consultants to the Airport Project's Board of Control meeting in Millbrae, explained three alternative routes to the airport, but chose the muni route as the most feasible.

From a dollar standpoint the muni route will cost far less than either the Colma Creek or Interstate 280-380 routings. In both these cases officials have predicted high construction costs.

The muni route will start off from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station in Daly City and follow the Southern Pacific right-of-way to the El Camino Real, where it switches onto the former San Francisco trolley line.

Basically the muni line is followed until the area of San Bruno where it crosses a small portion of private property and back onto airport-owned lands again.

Costs and exact station locations, plus other construction facts, were not detailed in the route report. These will come at a later date, according to officials.

The muni corridor was chosen because it has the greatest design flexibility, unlike the Colma Creek and Interstate 280 alternatives.

The route selection came as little surprise to those close to the San Francisco Access project study.

Alignment costs, a major factor in determining the routing of transit, would be held to a minimum with the muni selection. A breakdown reveals San Francisco owns some 60 per cent of the property, Southern Pacific 15 per cent and the state 10 per cent.

With the muni line route splitting the residential and industrial areas in most cities it passes through, the system would get patronage from both, the Board of Control was told.

Station locations could be located behind the Alec store in Daly City (San Pedro station), near Chestnut Street in South San Francisco, the Tanforan Shopping Center complex in San Bruno, and at the airport.

No mention was made of a station in the maintenance area of the airport and it was presumed the line would go directly into the new parking facility under construction at the airport.

Details on the airport station design were likewise not explained.

Although construction figures of between $200-250 million have been discussed concerning the link, officials scoff at the figure and point out no costs have been determined.

They do say, however, that both the routing of the link down Interstate 280 or Colma Creek would be "substantially more costly."

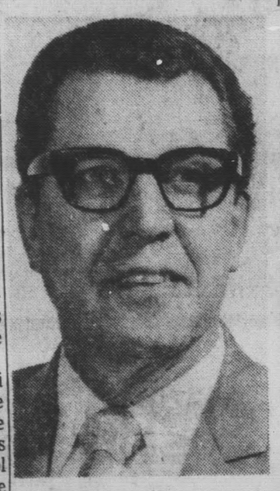
In order to function properly the system needs both a maintenance-of-way yard and a parking facility for transit trains.

"The only site that meets all ur) requirements is west of the Bayshore Freeway in the vicinity of the airport," the report states.

This parcel is owned by San Francisco.

Engineering consultants to the BOC are PBTB-Wilbur Smith and Kirker, Chapman Associates.

Pacifica's Postmaster Strom Sworn in As a County Planning Commissioner



KENNETH O. STROM,

Postmaster Kenneth O. Strom of Pacifica was sworn in on December 22 as a member of the San Mateo Countf Planning Commission.

Strom, who is chairman of the County Human Relations Commission, said he intends to resign from that body.

Strom was appointed by board Chairman Jean Fassler to represent the Fifth District on the Planning Commission, succeeding Robert McCahon, who resigned last week. McCahon, a Half Moon Bay real estate man, said he was forced to quit because of pressure of his private business.

When the appointment was ratified by the board this morning, Mrs. Fassler asked that the oath of office be administered "so we can put him to work immediately."

Strom was sworn in by District Attorney Keith C. Sorenson, who complimented him for a "tremendous job," not only as a member of the Human Relations Commission but for his activities in other civic endeavors.

"Mr. Strom," Mrs. Fassler said, "has proved to be a responsible citizen and I know he is going to represent the county well as a member of the Planning Commission."

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Terwilliger of 404 Central Street, Half Moon Bay, was held overnight in Mills Memorial Hospital for treatment of multiple scrapes, cuts and bruises.

Highway patrolmen said Donald was pedalling across Cabrillo Highway at Filbert Street at 5:30 p.m. when he was hit by a northbound motorcycle driven by Kenneth D. Besaw, 22, of Petaluma.

Donald told officers that he did not see the motorcycle when he started across the highway. And Besaw said he failed to see the bicycle until too late to avoid the collision.

New Year's Eve Get-together Planned By Pacifica Westside Baptist Church

A New Year's Eve Get Together will be held at the Westside Baptist Church, 390 Inverness Drive, Pacifica starting at 8.

This is the first such get together held in the church facilities.

The evening will begin with group and table games followed by the showing of a newly released movie, produced by Campus Crusade for Christ and starring Pat Boone.

The evening will close with a service in the sanctuary, at which time several will tell of blessings they have received in 1970, special music will be presented, a devotional by Rich Doran; congregational singing, and closing the old year and welcoming in the New in a time of prayer.

Members and friends of the church are invited.

"Born Of The Spirit" is the sermon topic for the Sunday morning message, January 3 at 10:55 a.m. This is the last in the series of messages dealing with the person and work of the Holy Spirit.

At this service, special music will be presented. Mrs. Ruth Gunther will be at the console of the organ.

During the adult worship hour, a childrens church for boys and girls four through seven years of age is conducted.

Primaries, Juniors, Junior High and Senior High will meet at 6 p.m.

"Assurance of Salvation" is the sermon topic for the 7 p.m. Family Fellowship Gospel Hour. There will be a time for personal testimonies, special music, congregational singing. There will be no mid-week service or meetings.

DC Jehovah's Have Belief Reconfirmed

Area Jehovah's Witnesses reconfirmed their controversial belief last weekend that the "end of the world," as now constituted, could come within the decade.

But Alvyn L. Franck, District Overseer, emphasized last Sunday at Oakland Auditorium that this was a belief of optimism, not pessimism, according to Larry Garabedian, presiding minister of the Daly City Congregation.

Frank predicted there would be no conquest by either the Communist or the non-Communist bloc of nations in the 1970's.

Downtown Business Tax Voted in S.S.F.

South San Francisco Monday night introduced an ordinance setting up a special downtown business improvement tax.

The vote was 4-1 with Councilman William Borba voting against the move. "I don't believe this tax is the solution to the downtown problem," said Borba.

Purpose of the tax is to allow merchants to generate money for advertising campaigns and business promotions. The tax applies only to those businesses bounded by Airport Boulevard and Spruce Avenue and Railroad Avenue to Pine Avenue.

Retail businessmen will pay an additional $50 annually. The professional and special services businesses will pay $25 and banks and savings and loan companies will pay an annual increase of $100.

Businessman Milton Bronstein and Attorney John Sherman back in August estimated the tax would bring in $7,800 annually. At that time a breakdown indicated the city would receive two percent ($150) for handling the tax process.

The remainder would be split with $2,500 to be used for pre-Christmas promotions. Six general advertisement promotions at $500 each would consume $3,000. Another $1,140 would be spent for the actual Christmas season. And $1,000 would be set aside for administrative and secretarial expense.

Supervisors Veto Bruno Park Land

A proposal that the county immediately allocate $400,000 to buy park land atop San Bruno Mountain and the same amount to buy redwood trees in Pescadero Creek Park was turned down last week by the Board of Supervisors.

The supervisors said both projects are surrounded by too much uncertainty to order the money spent at this time.

Michael Belangie, chairman of the Regional Planning Committee, told the board the executive committee of his group wants the county to move immediately to spend the $800,000 the supervisors placed in a special "environmental contingency fund" in the 1970-71 budget. Half of the money, Belangie said, should be committed to the purchase of as many acres on San Bruno Mountain as that amount would buy. The remainder, he proposed, should be allocated toward the purchase of redwoods in the Pescadero project.

Both purchases, Belangie said, are priority items in RPC's $167 million, 30-year parks and open space program.

Belangie told the board that county-wide support will be needed if there is to be a chance of voter approval of acquisition bonds. Noting that North County officials and citizens have been clamoring for a regional park on San Bruno Mountain, Belangie said:

"If you don't give them some confidence now, you might lose the North County vote on the bonds."

Board Chairman Jean Fassler, an RPC member, told Belangie she "resented the attitude" expressed in his statement.

"We all have a lot at stake here," Mrs. Fassler said. "It is not that we have a lack of good faith."

She reminded Belangie that the board has been waiting for a financing program (scheduled to be submitted by RPC in March) and is, in the meantime, committed to the establishment of a park on San Bruno Mountain. A master development plan, as well as a financing plan, is needed before any money should be allocated, however, Mrs. Fassler said.

Supervisor James V. Fitzgerald suggested that the best way to get a park there might be to require developers to dedicate the necessary land to public use.

Concerning the trees in the Pescadero project, County Manager M. D. Tarshes pointed out that it is still not known which trees should be bought because of uncertainties over the size of dam and reservoir, if any, to go into the park. He suggested that the trees purchase might require the entire $800,000, or more.

"You have the $800,000," Belangie told the board, "and they (the executive committee) want you to put it some place."

"Just because we have the $800,000," Supervisor Gerald F. Day observed, "doesn't mean we have to spend it."

THE POST'S Family Forum

Camp Fire Girls Give Foodstuff

More than 100 cans of food were collected by Camp Fire girls of all ages as they met at the Westlake Park clubhouse to celebrate Christmas by bringing in cans of food to share with Daly City's less fortunate families.

Most of the girls earned the money themselves to buy the cans of food which they brought.

Miss Gwen Marks, Camp Fire staff member for Daly City girls, was mistress of ceremonies for the day, introducing the entertainment provided by various groups.

She also provided some entertainment of her own by presenting magic tricks.

Girls from Mrs. Doris Goldberg's group who sang songs.

Girls from the Ko-Ki-Ta-Wan-Ka group with Mrs. Albert Fluehr as guardian and Mrs. Richard Freund as assistant did a dance to the music of Aquarius, and girls from Mrs. David Schwimmers group sang a Hanukah song, and pantomined to the poem, "Night Before Christmas."

All the girls joined in singing Christmas carols.

Girls from the Jr. High group of Mrs. Marcy Stuhr were dressed in cardboard boxes, depicting different Christmas carols. While the carol corresponding to the box on a girl was sung, that girl picked a Camp Fire or Blue Bird group and escorted them to the front where the group then deposited their cans of food in decorated boxes.

Santa Claus handed out candy canes.

After the program, the cans of food were delivered to Daly City firemen who distributed them to deserving families Thursday.

Be Good to Your Heart

All year long, those of us who revel in carbohydrates, calories, saturated fats and cholesterol make it mighty tough for those trying to keep their weight down or protect their hearts.

We glorify sauces and fondues, gravies and stuffings with no pity for those who cannot indulge along with us.

But this Christmas (a season of particular danger to weight watchers and heart patients) we yield our space to the County Heart Association for some sensible (yet succulent) recipes.

APPETIZER: BEEF BALLS AND CHERRY TOMATOES

Make tiny (marble-sized) meat balls from 1 pound ground lean beef, ½ tsp. thyme, ½ tsp. rosemary, 1 tsp. minced parsley, 1 tsp. poly-unsaturated oil, and ½ tsp. pepper. Blend together and pan or oven broil.

To serve: Hollow out a small round loaf of French Bread. Refill with hot meat balls and marinated cherry tomatoes. Be sure to provide party picks for spearing.

MARINADE FOR CHERRY TOMATOES

Combine 1 cup wine vinegar, 1 tsp. marjoram, ½ tsp. each Italian herbs, pepper, 1 small clove, minced garlic, and 2 tablespoons poly-unsaturated oil. Pour over tomatoes or mushrooms and marinate for several hours or overnight.

This recipe is adapted for both low sodium and-or low cholesterol (fat-controlled) diets.

CHICKEN GUMBO

1 5 lb. stewing Hen, cut into pieces.
½ C poly-unsaturated oil
½ C flour
1 C chopped onion
1 garlic clove, crushed
1 bay leaf
x2 T Worcestershire
1 T Lemon juice
½ tsp. each, pepper, thyme
½ C each chopped green onion, chopped parsley
1 tsp. gumbo file' powder, dash red pepper
x Salt

1. Remove skin from hen and wash. 2. In heavy kettle, brown hen. Remove. Stir in flour, add onion, garlic and stir until transparent. 3. Add 2 C water, then lemon juice and all esasonings, BUT file' powder. Put chicken pieces in again. 4. Simmer until tender, about 30 minutes (or more) 5. At serving time add file' powder and serve over cooked fluffy rice.

x(Low Sodium Restriction: Omit Worcestershire and Salt. Substitute ½ C low-sodium tomato juice, or sauce for Worcestershire.)

And for dessert:

ORANGE GLAZED WALNUTS

¾ cup sugar; 1 tablespoon water; 3 tablespoons orange juice; 2½ cups shelled Walnuts. 1. Combine sugar, water & orange juice, blending well. Cook over low heat stirring occasionally until soft ball stage (235 degrees-238 degrees). Remove from heat, add nuts. Stir with fork to mix. Cool. Store in covered container in a cool place.

Other such recipes are available at the Heart Association office, 323 Villa Terrace, San Mateo.

Ann Leslie, Nicholas Krnich Wed

St. John the Baptist Serbian Orthodox Church in San Francisco was the setting for the recent marriage of Ann Cecilia Leslie and Nicholas Michael Krnich. The Rev. Dushan Bunjevec officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Leslie of Millbrae; her bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Krnich, also of Millbrae.

For her wedding, Ann chose a floor length gown of ivory slipper satin with bishop sleeves and a full, gathered skirt which flowed into a chapel train. The high neckline was adorned by Venise lace.

An ivory satin Juliet cap matching the gown caught the bride's fingertip illusion veil.

Judy Leslie was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Valerie Giachetti, a cousin; Coleen Krnich, Nick's sister-in-law; Christi Bried, and Louise Vierra. They were dressed identically in foor length moss green slipper satin gowns with long sleeves with ruffled cuffs, A-line skirts, and Empire waistlines.

George Tepovich of Bonia, son of the bridegroom's godfather, Captain Eli Tepovich, was the ring bearer.

Stephen Grgich was his cousin's best man, and guests were seated by Mike Krnich, brother of the bridegroom; Neil Leslie, brother of the bride; Phil Milgrom; Don Lembi, and Stan and Dan Grgich, cousins of the bridegroom.

The couple received felicitations at the Brentwood Lodge before departing on a wedding trip to Texas. The couple will live in Austin while the bridegroom is stationed at Bergstrom Air Force Base.

Clam Chowder for New Year

NELL NORTON
Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

Heigh-ho and what did Santa bring you? Two tickets for a trip to Bermuda and a new wardrobe for the holiday? What a coincidence, he didn't bring me that either.

Since we're not joining the jet set for the winter season, let's relax over a cup of coffee and talk about recipes. After all the rich goodies we've concocted and consumed during Christmas, something plain and easy to make sounds good doesn't it?

This clam chowder fits that description. A hot thick soup like this is especially good on a cold wintery night.

FRAN'S CLAM CHOWDER
2 slices bacon, cut fine
1 small onion, chopped
2 cups potatoes, cubed
2 cups water
1 can minced clams, 7½ ounces
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 soda crackers, crushed

Cut the two slices bacon into small pieces, place in a large saucepan along with the chopped onion. Cook, stirring occasionally, until the onion is golden brown. Add the two cups diced potatoes, two cups water and the liquid from the clams. Simmer until potatoes are tender.

In a medium saucepan melt the one tablespoon butter, blend in the two tablespoons flour. Add the two cups milk, one teaspoon salt and eighth teaspoon pepper. Stir to mix and cook over medium heat for 5 minutes. Stirring constantly.

Combine the milk and potato mixtures, add the clams and cook 5 minutes more. Crush the three soda crackers into the chowder, stir and serve. Serves 4

This casserole dish is too pretty to be called plain and since it won a prize in a newspaper, it obviously is something special.

HAMBURGER-CHEESE CASSEROLE
½ cup minced onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 tablespoons oil
1 pound ground beef
1 8-ounce can tomato juice
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon each pepper and oregano
1 pkg. elbow macaroni, 7 ozs,, cooked and drained
6 ounces processed American cheese, grated
3 eggs, beaten
¾ cup milk

Heat the two tablespoons oil in skillet, add the half cup minced onion and crushed garlic and saute. Add the one pound ground beef and cook stirring occasionally until brown. Pour off drippings. Add the eight ounces tomato sauce, one teaspoon salt, fourth teaspoon each pepper and oregano and mix well. Pour into a greased two-quart casserole dish.

While your meat is cooking, cook the macaroni as directed on the package. Combine the cooked macaroni with the six ounces grated cheese and place on top of the meat mixture in casserole.

Lightly beat the three eggs and add to the three-fourths cup milk and pour over macaroni.

Bake in 350-degree oven for one hour. Serves 8.

Correction on last week's recipe for Nesselrode Chiffon Pie.

NESSELRODE CHIFFON PIE
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
Two-thirds cup sugar, divided
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 eggs, separated
1¼ cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
2 teaspoons rum flavor (or) 3 Tablespoons rum
1 tablespoon chopped maraschino cherries
1 9-inch baked pie shell
Shaved chocolate.

Mix the envelope gelatine, one-third cup of the sugar and the eighth teaspoon salt thoroughly in top of double boiler. Beat the three egg yolks, one and one-fourth cups milk and cup heavy cream together. Add to gelatin. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly until gelatin is dissolved, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in the 2 teaspoons rum flavoring (or) 3 tablespoons rum. Chill in refrigerator stirring occasionally until mixture mounds when dropped from spoon. Beat the three egg whites until stiff. Beat in the remaining one-third cup sugar. Fold gelatin mixture and one tablespoon cherries into stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into baked pie shell and top with shaved chocolate. Chill until firm.

WHS Economics Class Visits Financial Area

Westmoor High School's economic class recently toured San Francisco's financial district.

First stop on the tour was the Pacific Stock Exchange, located on Sansome Street, where the students and Dexter Leland, the class instructor, saw company representatives buy and sell stocks between the Pacific Stock Exchange, found in Los Angeles as well as San Francisco, and the New York Stock Exchange.

After learning how companies bought and sold stocks, the students went to the Federal Reserve Bank, on Sacramento Street, to see where San Francisco's bankers get the money to run their own banks. As soon as they stepped inside the Federal Reserve Bank they realized the tight security that existed as the guards told them to take their jackets and sweaters off and that pictures would not be allowed. After following these instructions the students were divided into two groups as they took two separate tours through the bank.

They were also shown how the bank receives the money from other banks, how it is recounted, checked for authenticity and stored in the banks account. The students were also shown how the Federal Reserve Bank destroys old bills and where new bills, as well as gold bars, are stored.

After being surrounded by millions of dollars they went on to the Dean Witter's Stock Broker firm, located on Montgomery Street, to see how a local brokerage firm operates.

Special New Year's Eve Party For Finocchio's

Finocchio's nightclub, home of the highly entertaining female impersonators, has a big special planned for New Year's Eve, with shows running continuously from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. The price will be only $3, and no cover charge at the tables. The complete cast of entertainers will take part in the show — Lucien, Carroll Wallace, Laverne, Jackie Phillips, Bobby De Castro, Russell Reed, Rene De Carlo, Elton Paris, Ty Lindstrom, Reggie Dahl. Antonio and the Eve-ette chorus line . . . Two generations of Peninsulans have been welcoming the New Year at the Villa Chartier and Lanai restaurants. Villa Chartier's new manager, El Smits, will feature their traditional holiday dinners, plus the entertainment of Arpad, the celebrated gypsy violinist, and his partner, organist George. Hats, noisemakers and confetti will add to the festivities until the wee hours. Dine and watch the Bowl games on color TV on New Year's Day. At the Lanai, there will be an aura of the Islands, on the "big night." Cantonese, American and East Indian dishes will be accented by 100 exotic drinks. Dinners served til midnight. Hurry with reservations — call Marian Bedard in Emerson Murfee's office.

SEX SYMBOL—Burt Bacharach, one of the most prolific composers of hit songs since Irving Berlin, is appearing in the South Shore Room at Harrah's Tahoe, through January 3. Columnist Earl Wilson refers to Bacharach as "America's leading male sex symbol."

Comedian Bill Cosby is back in the Headliner Room at Harrah's Reno through New Year's Eve. Opening on New Year's Day is curvaceous singer-dancer Joey Heatherton. Appearing with Miss Heatherton are The Carpenters, a popular brother-sister song and instrumental team. In the Casino Cabaret: Gaylord and Holiday, Odia Coates and The Entire Phase, and The Collins Coins . . . From 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. New Year's Eve, the entire Grateful Dead "family" including offshoot band, The New Riders of the Purple Sage, and assorted friends from various Bay Area bands, will stage a massive musical jam at San Francisco's Winterland Arena. Also appearing will be the 10-piece San Francisco group, Stoneground . . . The New Year's Eve program at the Villa Hotel starts off with dinner in either the Villa Coffee House or Upper Level, then dancing to the sounds of Teddy Noga's Eastman Trio, with all the added fun. And don't forget, the Villa Coffee House is open 24 hours serving quick snacks and complete meals . . . If a pizza ever became a religious object, the new church of the order would be at Romano's Italian restaurant, which is perched in a colorful setting in Pacifica's Rockaway Beach. And if a new leader was needed, it would have to be Enrico Romano, a man who has done more for the pizza than the anchovie.

Ken's Melody Inn Ideal For New Year's Parties

Unusual New Year's Eve entertainment will be in Los Altos at Ken's Melody Inn restaurant, where the Mighty Wurlitzer roars again! You and the family can again thrill to the largest theater pipe organ in commercial use this side of Salt Lake City. Weighing 24 tons, the organ has 1500 pipes (some 10 feet high) and goes 70 feet from wall-to-wall. It's the same organ installed in the Paramount Theater, Oakland, in 1931, designed by the immortal Jesse Crawford. Old-time organ maestro Bill Watts, who wears funny old hats and plays musical accompaniment, plays nightly. Families munch on Italian spaghetti, tasty pizza, ravioli, fettuccini, chicken and fish and chips as they watch silent film comedies of Charlie Chaplin. Ken Pruitt, owner of Ken's House of Pancakes of Millbrae, Menlo Park, Mountain View, Campbell, Vacaville, and soon, Hawaii, is owner of the beautiful restaurant . . . The Trio Orfeo, one of the best of the Greek music groups, provides belly-dancing music at the Greek Taverna in North Beach. Each night this unique group creates a series of musical sounds that brings joy not only to the professional dancers but to the amateurs with an urge to leap onto the stage and dance their hearts out.

WELCOME THE NEW YEAR — Providing the music for the gala New Year's Eve dinner-dance to be held in the elegant Carnelian Room, a restaurant show place atop the Bank of America Center in San Francisco, will be the Walter G. Tollest Musical Organization. Private rooms are available with panoramic views of the city, and reservations are advisable.

Star-Studded Show Set for Kings Castle

Kings Castle, Incline Village, North Lake Tahoe, is aglow with glittering entertainment as Superstar Johnny Mathis headlines the Holiday show (through January 2). Appearing with the popular singing is The Establishment . . . Willowly blonde Jackie DeShannon, one of the most discerning young singers in the entertainment spectrum, demonstrates her innate feel for soul stylings in Harolds' Fun Room twice nightly, at 9 p.m. and midnight; a third show on Saturdays at 2 a.m. Bo Ayars doubles as pianist and conductor of the Don Conn Orchestra. Appearing in Harolds second-floor Silver Dollar Room are Johnny Prophet and Bill Kane . . . There's still time to make your reservations for the special New Year's Eve party at the Hilton Inn, San Francisco International Airport. Start your night by dining in the French Corner restaurant to background music by Pianist Maurice Anger and then climax the evening by dancing to two orchestras in the new Terrace Room . . . New Year's Eve will be an evening of dancing and entertainment at Belmont's Deejay's and Burlingame's Putter.

New Southern Banquet Facilities Holiday Busy

The South Francisco Lion's Club was among the many groups recently utilizing the New Southern's banquet facilities for holiday gatherings. Also, several local politicans have dropped in for dinner during the past few days. In fact, co-owner Reno Donati knows so many people, he could probably run for (and win) a political office. . . . The international complex of restaurants located in Hillsdale's Farmers Market will not be open on New Year's Day. This has been one of the busiest holiday seasons ever for the complex, and the time off should provide for a bit of recuperation for the various owners and their employes. . . . The trio of co-owners at the plush Aquarius in downtown San Mateo have shelled out the loot for music and party favors, which means New Year's Eve here should be a magnificient affair. Music and entertainment by the Benjamin Kite String . . . Phil Lehr's smooth new Suntory Royal Pippin cocktail is making a big hit with Holiday crowds at the Steakery in downtown San Francisco. Phil created the delicious drink blending Suntory Royal Whisky with California apple cider and sweet lemon juice.

Reno Donati

ROCKIN' RICKY ZUMBO — This unique, double-barrelled rock and comedy act opens Wednesday, January 6, at the Black Stag restaurant in Belmont. Appearing Wednesday through Saturday nights, this "far-out" group features rock 'n roll music and hilarious comedy to please all audiences.

New Year's Eve at Dave Rasmussen's Shadows of San Mateo will see an evening of quiet dining, with the Shadows' regular menu in effect. . . . It's a "Happy New Year to all" from Lorraine and Nick Gust and their three-restaurant staff. Yes, Nick's, The Moonraker and the Papagayo Room (located on the shores of the Pacific at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica) will be open to serve you on New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. . . . You will have to go far and wide to top the prices and quality consistently offered at Foster's Farm-Fried Chicken House in San Mateo (across from Hillsdale). If your holiday plans include dinner at home, remember Foster's will prepare a take-out dinner for you — from salad to dessert, plus a "bundle" of Farm-Fried Chicken. . . . After all the hustle and bustle of the Holidays, what could be nicer than a relaxing candlelight dinner at Lew Lehr's Steak House in San Francisco's Marina district. Lew will open his popular restaurant at 5 p.m. New Year's Day, and if your wallet is rather thin after the Holiday gift-giving, take heart: complete cut-to-order steak dinners at Lehr's are still priced from just $5.

D. Rasmussen

The elegant Marriott Inn in Belmont is where much of the action will be on New Year's Eve. General Manager Nat Soto has put together an exciting entertainment and lodging package at an unbelievable price. $30. per couple is the complete tab, which includes a considerable array of enticements. . . . The Benjamin Franklin Hotel's "new" Greenwillow dining room will follow the customer-pleasing restaurant policy that broke all records on Christmas Day. A complete New Year's Day dinner will be served for just $3.95. There will also be a full holiday menu at comparable, reasonable prices. . . . Scotty Campbell's will be among the prominent restaurants on the Peninsula serving dinner on New Year's Day, from 4 p.m. As you already know, this popular Redwood City restaurant is a favorite dining spot for those with particular tastes. So reservations are advisable. . . . A superb view of the Pacific ocean is included with every meal served at Frank and Fannie Torres' beach restaurant, located in picturesque Montara, on Coast Highway 1. Specialties of the house are South American in origin. A New Year's Day turkey dinner will be served from 11 a.m., plus a variety menu for every member of the family.

Nat Soto

Bruno Fava reminds Bright Lights' readers to book now for the big New Year's Eve celebration planned at his Bruno's Italian restaurant in downtown San Mateo. A special dinner menu will be served from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. Pianobar entertainment will fill the air with happy holiday strains. Yes, Bruno's will be serving on New Year's Day from 2:30 p.m. . . . Guests celebrating New Year's Eve at San Mateo's new Royal Coach Motor Hotel will be treated to a regal menu, which includes a bottle of champagne. Also consider the advantages of staying overnight on the "Double Room Special" which offers a late check out so you may enjoy the Bowl games on TV. . . . A good bet for New Year's Eve is the Shirt Tail in Palo Alto. Edmundo Rivan, the Peninsula's Trini Lopez, provides songs and guitar music for a magnificent dinner. The exciting South American singer will lead the fun in the sunken cocktail lounge, where the fireplace glows with friendliness. . . . It will be "Auld Lang Syne" for the fiftieth time at San Francisco's Cafe El Portal when the Canellos brothers, Chris and Basil, host the gala dine-and-dance party this New Year's Eve at their popular restaurant by Golden Gate Park.

Jury Urges Police Units Be Merged

The 1970 San Mateo County Grand Jury has suggested consolidation of the Sheriff's Department and all city police departments into one single policing agency.

The proposal is included in the jury's final report, that was filed with Superior Court Judge Robert F. Kane.

Belmont Police Chief George D. Trenam said he didn't see any advantages to a single county law enforcement agency. "Each community has different problems and a metropolitan police department wouldn't solve them," he said.

Among "a lot of hangups" toward moving to a new agency would be equalizing a retirement benefits, which differ greatly from city to city now, Trenam said.

San Mateo Mayor Hugh Wayne's immediate reaction today was "No I would certainly oppose any consolidation of our police force into a huge metropolitan department.

"We have an excellent police department, particularly well trained and administered by Chief (Martin C.) McDonnell. From the standpoint of the citizens of San Mateo there would be little advantage which I can see.

"Whatever cost savings would result would be offset to some degree certainly by the need for bigger salaries for administrative people.

"There would have to be several major stations, probably new ones would have to be built. In the event of emergencies this means the officers would have longer distances to travel to reach some areas.

"Besides, once again, you can't beat local control for responsiveness to the people's need. We have a good thing going, why change it?"

Among its other recommendations, the jury urged retention of the "at large" method of electing county supervisors.

On that point and several others the jury took positions exactly opposite to those taken by the 1969 Grand Jury. In contrast with last year's report, the 1970 body was commendatroy to the Board of Supervisors.

Among its recommendations:

— Municipal courts in Redwood City should be relocated immediately into the new Hall of Justice addition in the next block to eliminate the "chain gang" spectacle of prisoners being led to and from the county jail to the Hall of Justice.

— The Health and Welfare Department should remain as a single agency, rather than be split as recommended by the 1969 jury.

— There should be no limit on the terms of county supervisors. Last year's body urged a limitation of two consecutive terms.

—The county should concentrate on construction of the buildings it needs rather than continue to follow an extensive leasing policy.

—A new building should be put up in San Mateo to house all of the scattered functions of the office of coroner, public administrator, public guardian and public conservator.

—A fourth department should be added to the Municipal Court in Redwood City.

The jury also expressed satisfaction with the progress being made toward solving security problems at the San Francisco County Jail west of San Bruno, from which there have been several escapes.

"In talks with the district attorney's office and the supervisors," the report states, "we find that they are doing everything within their power to alleviate the nuisance and hazard from the people of San Mateo County. It is recommended that the 1971 Grand Jury work closely with the district attorney's office and the supervisors so as not to let this nuisance increase."

Concerning the proposal to consolidate police agencies, the report had this to say:

"San Mateo County is unique in many respects, particularly geographically, which could easily be consolidated into one policing agency. Thousands, if not millions, of dollars could be saved by the consolidation.

"There are some 20 or so policing agencies within less than 500 square miles, with a popula tion of 600,000. We have a chief of police approximately every four miles on the Peninsula as well as a complete staff office complement, each having its own records-keeping section, communications, and other related duplications and expenditures.

"It is recommended that the county manager and the board of supervisors, along with the city councils of San Mateo study for improving the efficiency of law enforcement, as well as protecting the citizens' tax dollar."

Sunday, Rod Serling, one of TV's master craftsmen, returned in a regular series. It is a series of sorts really.

In six weeks he, NBC and the viewers will find out if he has his old touch. You'll recall at one time Rod had one of the most provocative shows on television, "The Twilight Zone."

In the opener of "Night Gallery," to be a six-part segment of "Four in One," Rod started out with two plays, neither of which did he author.

The first segment involved a scientist, of sorts, who has been experimenting with revival of the dead. The second part of the hour was "The Housekeeper," which involved the transference of an old lady's soul into the body of a cold-hearted young woman.

Because the young woman was a cold-hearted wife, things happened. If the rest of the series is as well done as the opener, Serling may be around for some time.

In the future, each of the shows will include one, two or three separate stories. A total of 14 yarns will be told in the upcoming six weeks.

Strangely enough, "Psychiatrist" which was a feature film of two hours, originally was planned for this spot. As it turned out, however, the show had some weak spots and Universal or NBC decided to make it the final series of the four planned for "Four of A Kind."

"McCloud," the first six shows of the series, proved pretty popular with the viewers and there is a great likelihood that it may be a regular series next fall.

"San Francisco International," the second six-segment series, did pretty well. We hear that Universal and NBC both are studying the possibility of continuing it. However, we also hear that the people at the airport aren't too happy about the thought of having the Universal crews back on the property.

It appears that perhaps Universal and Serling will make a full fledged series out of this group of stories. It could be that all four of the six-parters could become hits.

HERE ARE THE LATEST Neilsen ratings which find CBS stlil pretty strong, and Marcus Welby on top of the heap.

1—Marcus Welby, M.D. (ABC)
2—Dick Van Dyke-Bill Cosby Special (NBC)
3—Frosty the Snowman (CBS)
4—Charlie Brown Christmas (CBS)
5—Movie (ABC)
6—Medical Center (CBS)
7—Hawaii Five-O (CBS)
8—How the Grinch Stole Christmas (CBS)
9—Movie (ABC)
10—FBI (ABC)
11—Winnie the Pooh (NBC)
12—Ironside (NBC)
13—Here's Lucy (CBS)
14—Flip Wilson Show (NBC)
15—The Bold Ones (NBC)
16—My Three Sons (CBS)
17—Rowan and Martin Laugh-In (NBC)
18—The Littlest Angel (NBC)
19—Gunsmoke (CBS)
20—Mod Squad (ABC)

I WAS NOT AT ALL SURPRISED by the reaction of television viewers to the recent John Wayne Special. In doing a short review on the show, I didn't feel that it pulled off the patriotic bit too well. On the other hand it was a well-produced 90 minutes with a lot of big names shown in good light.

Most of the comments from you readers, however, seemed to be "political" leaning. The liberals, who don't like Wayne for his politics, and the conservatives who don't care who is on as long as he is one of them, expressed their opinions mostly on that basis.

Seven letters and two phone calls came out like this: four liked the show a lot, four hated it and one agreed with me, which isn't bad . . . or is it?

LAST WEEK'S "CHANGING SCENE" with Gene Kelly, Lee Marvin, Barbara Eden, Marty Allen and the Mike Curb Organization was such a success, both in the ratings and with the critics, that two more, at least, will be produced.

In the next session Barbara Eden will be around, for which we can all be truly thankful, as will the Osmand Brothers, Don Adams and Engelbert Humperdinck.

Eight New Officers Named

South San Francisco Police Chief Sal Rosano announced today the appointment of eight new members of the department.

The appointments include two new clerk-dispatchers, William B. Tipton, 39, and Marion Arriola, 26, both of whom will work in the office handling the dispatching duties.

Tipton, who served with the Air Force for 21 years until his retirement last July, and Arriola, a native of the Philippines and a resident of the Bay Area since 1955, is also an Air Force veteran.

A third new member, Teiko Izutsu of the office staff, will be clerk-typist. In addition the three new office staff, Chief Rosano announced the appointment of five new officers to complement the city's police force. The new men will allow the department to reschedule duty hours in accordance with a recent city council action approving a new six days on, three days off, shift.

New officers are John Thomas Moran, 23, a graduate of Serra High School and a Vietnam veteran; Ismael Daniel Cabrera, 25, a graduate of San Francisco City College; Dennis Morgan Sullivan, 26, a native of South San Francisco and former member of the Brisbane Police Department; Charles Perry DeSoto, 24, a native of South San Francisco and graduate of the College of San Mateo and Edward Wilborn, 27, a native of Oregon.

$10 Filing Fee for Fictitious Names

All businesses operating under a fictitious name for profit will be required to re-file a Fictitious Business Name Statement by next July 1, according to County Clerk-Recorder Marvin Church. The filing fee will be $10.

Church said that, although a new law requiring the re-filing does not becomes effective until July 1, it may be done at any time between January 1 and July 1. He urged all firms affected to comply as soon as possible to avoid the rush at deadline.

A fictitious name, Church said, is one that does not include the surname of the operator or one that implies the existence of other owners, or, if a corporation, if it includes a name other than the name given in the articles of incorporation.

Legal publication of the statement is required if there has been any change in information required in the statement previously filed, according to Church.

Program of Sacred Music in Daly City

The Rev. Bert Wilhoit will present a sacred concert at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Westlake Community Baptist Church, Southgate and Elmwood, Daly City.

Reverend Wilhoit, is the brother of Mrs. Edward Kewkirk of Daly City.

He was a staff organist for radio broadcasts by Dr. Paul Rader, and other pastor-evangelists. He is an instructor in the Schools of Religion and Sacred Music at Bob Jones University of Greenville, S.C.

Mr. and Mrs. Newkirk and Cindy Zpitzer of the Westlake congregation will assist in the program of organ, piano and vocal arrangements.

PROMOTED

Robert A. Wells has been promoted to assistant cashier-operations officer of the South San Francisco office of the First National Bank of Daly City.

Signs Studied by Committee

A complaint about commercial billboards alongside Junipero Serra Freeway in the Daly City area has been referred to the Regional Planning Committee

At a meeting of the County Board of Supervisors last week Supervisors James V. Fitzgerald complained to Michael Belangie, RPC chairman, that several commercial signs are visible from the freeway in the vicinity of the Serramonte Shopping Center.

"You don't see them in other cities," the supervisor said.

Fitzgerald noted that esthetic considerations received much attention in the design and construction of the freeway and asked the RPC to investigate if anything can be done to have the billboards removed. Belangie agreed to have the committee look into it.

Coastside Man Killed in Accident

A 48-year-old Half Moon Bay man died early Wednesday morning when the pickup truck he was driving went out of control on Sneath Lane in San Bruno.

Police said they did not become aware of the accident until 8 a.m. yesterday when notified by a man working at a nearby interstate highway overpass.

The victim was identified as John (Jack) Fagundes, of Second Avenue, in Miramar.

Authorities theorized that Fagundes was traveling westbound on Sneath Lane. He apparently lost control of the vehicle about 200 feet east of Interstate 280. Police said the truck crossed Sneath Lane at a 45-degree angle, hit the south curb, flipped up onto the embankment, then slid down some 30 feet.

The height of the embankment easily could hide the accident from the view of passing motorists, according to police. Project superintendent for the L. C. Smith Company, George Giovannoni, inspecting the construction of the overpass, spotted the accident.

Police said Fagundes' body was found outside the truck.

Fagundes was a retired food market owner. He once owned, successively, what are now the Princeton Market in Princeton, Jack's Market in Miramar and Sam's in Half Moon Bay.

A native of Scotia, Calif., he was a World War II veteran and had been a Coastside resident the past 21 years.

Survivors include two sons, Harry in the Air Force and John, Jr., of Montara; his mother, Mrs. Mae Fagundes of Napa, and two sisters, Mrs. Alice Knight of Napa and Mrs. Florence Bacigalupi of South San Francisco.

Funeral services will be at 11 a.m., Monday, at Dutra-Randleman Funeral Home in Half Moon Bay.

THE MARQUEE

Wife-mother-actress — which comes first? Maybe only one's children and friends can evaluate that. For Anne Lawder, making her debut with American Conservatory Theater in "The Tempest," her choices have been made for her.

Anne Lawder

"I don't think of myself as an actress. But then I don't believe that motherhood is a normal instinct. I gave up acting to devote myself to my children, and I think I did them a great disservice by staying home."

Married to director Allen Fletcher, the tall brunette has paid her dues to the theater. Now she's back in it for a personal satisfaction, utilizing her academic background and experience to teach speech for ACT.

An alumna of Burlingame High School and College of San Mateo (where Ada Beveridge was her mentor and best critic), she attended Stanford University where she found herself ironically on the "hook and eye detail," and met Fletcher in the "diaphonous drawer."

"My mother always wanted me to take up sewing, but I felt guilty abour her spending all that money to send me to Stanford — where I excelled in the costume department.

She grew up on Cortez Avenue, the daughter of tax lawyers for the Internal Revenue Department, the late William H. Lawder. Her mother, now retired, still lives in Burlingame.

In 1953 she married a native of the Bay Area (he was born at the Presidio, where his father was an Army Colonel) in Stanford Chapel, after a circuitous route to theatrical byways such as Ashland Shakespearean Festival, Hillbarn Little Theater ("Dark of the Moon" and "Dr. Willy Nilly"), Millbrae Players (Madame Arcata in "Blithe Spirit") and one summer at the Camden Hills Theater.

Theory life is often glamorous in theory but not in practise. A job as window dresser for Joseph Magnin store, and with NBC and Music Corporation of America gave her new outlooks on her career. Then came traveling around the country, while her husband took directing laurels at Yale, Carnegie Tech and Seattle Repertory Company.

It was in Seattle that Anne began to do small roles again.

"I studied dancing and singing because it was cheaper than paying a shrink. And it's less terrifying when you don't feel the play depends totally on you."

Fletcher attracts honors. A Fullbright took them to the Bristol Old Vic Theater in England; and a Ford Foundation Grant to direct opera means new cities, new stages in their future.

She talks as if San Francisco might be their permanent home. A three-year lease on their apartment has a positive note about it. But this active family (Julia at 14 attends the Urban School of San Francisco and Jack, age 16, is at the Interlochen Arts Academy in Michigan) goes where the muse calls.

Their lives are linked inseparably with the regional theater movement in America, from the campuses to the hinterlands.

"Americans are just beginning to get over their inferiority complex about not being British. I've met and worked with a lot of them and except for Michael Redgrave, British actors can't hold a candle to American actors.

Anne is also preparing for "The Latent Heterosexual" and "The Time of Your Life" at ACT.

It can't be easy, waking up in the morning and playing wife, only to face the same man later in the day, as an actress.

DOUBLE TRUCKS cost some $47,000 each and are specially-designed to haul garbage to Mountain View 35 miles away. (Post Photo)

Garbage Trucks Rolling

By FRANK LAPIERRE

There is something new on the Bayshore Freeway.

Big semi tractor-trailer trucks made of aluminum are seen shuttling between Brisbane and Mountain View seven days a week.

These trucks carry an important load — garbage.

San Francisco's 1800 daily tons of garbage, as a matter-of-fact.

When the dump site in Brisbane became full this year officials of the Sunset Scavenger Company began looking for a new site.

They finally decided on Mountain View where city fathers welcomed the garbage with open arms and a money-starved city treasury.

Specially designed trucks to haul the refuse some 35 miles between Brisbane and Mountain View were purchased for $47,000 each — a total investment of some $1 million.

In addition a new transfer plant, the world's largest, was built on the county line between San Francisco and San Mateo.

With a processing capacity of more than 5,000 tons per day the new plant went into operation in September.

Small collection trucks bring their loads of refuse into the plant where it is dumped into a huge pit. Inside the pit two bulldozers push the material into a loading shaft that drops the garbage into closed tractor-trailer trucks below.

The pit air is remarkably free of odor due to a system that vents the building while spraying germ-killing deodorants on loads as they are dumped.

A scale stops the loading when each vehicle reaches it admissible load weight.

Leonard Stefanelli, president of Sunset, said the plant is designed to expand the operation at a later date. This expansion would include a facility to recycle material.

HRC to Salute Flag

The San Mateo Human Relations Commission which had voted against giving the pledge of allegiance at its study meetings will henceforth follow City Council policy and give the pledge at the opening of all its public sessions.

The question was raised at the December 21 meeting bf Councilman William Burkdall. He said all boards and commissions, including the HRC, should follow council practice. The audience applauded.

Chairman Emily Skolnick assured the council that the HRC has always given the pledge in opening public meetings whenever there was a flag in the room. This was not done when the commission was meeting at the Martin Luther King Center because there was no flag in the room. She said since there was no flag previously in the city council conference room where the commission has met, the custom was not followed.

Mayor Hugh Wayne said the city will provide a flag for any city meeting room whenever needed.

Mrs. Skolnick said, "I want to make it absolutely clear that we have always started our public meetings with a pledge. It is very unfortunate that there has been a misconception."

Vice Mayor John Condon made a motion that all formal HRC meetings be held at the city hall. The motion died for lack of a second.

Condon criticized the commission's previous attempt to meet in a private home. Rotating meetings to various places made it difficult for the public to attend, he said, adding "Citizens should know where you hold the meetings. I don't like meetings held in private homes."

Mrs. Skolnick said the HRC had never met in anyone's home. Condon said it had planned to meet at the home of former Commissioner Richard deLancie, until the council objected. Mrs. Skolnick said it had only been planned to meet in DeLancie's home for a sensitivity training session.

Councilman John Murray said he believes the HRC is an important city commission. He said all meetings should be held in public places. Occasionally city boards and commissions should bring government to the neighborhood, he said.

Condon and Councilman William Weber requested a progress report on HRC activities during the year and plans for the year ahead. They expanded the request to include all boards and commissions.

Condon said his basic concern is the $17,000 budgeted annually for the commission. He said he felt little was accomplished for the community.

The council accepted two more resignations, those of J. Ronald Fulmer and Paul Kaplan. In his letter Fulmer suggested the HRC should not have more than seven to nine members. It originally had 25 members. It was reduced to 15, is now at 14 with recent resignations.

3 Superior Court Judges Selected

A new superior court judge, and two municipal district judges for San Mateo County were named today by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Municipal Judge Robert D. Miller of the Northern Judicial District of San Mateo County was named to the newly created Superior Court in Redwood City.

Walter Capaccioli, a well-known South San Francisco attorney was named to fill the vacancy created by Judge Miller's elevation to the Superior Court, and Frank Piombo, San Mateo attorney and former deputy district attorney was named to the Southern Judicial District to fill the vacancy caused by by the election of Municipal Judge Robert Carey to the Superior Court last November.

The appointments become effective at once except that of Piombo which becomes effective on January 4.

Miller has been serving as municipal judge in South San Francisco since 1969. He is graduate of Hastings Law School and Columbia University. He has lived in and practiced law for the past 17 years. He is a resident of Atherton, is married and is the father of five children.

Capaccioli is 39, a member of the South San Francisco law firm of Tragoutsis and Capaccioli, and has been practicing law since 1960. He is a graduate of USF.

Piombo, 46, a former deputy district attorney, served for the past six years as city attorney for Millbrae. He is a Colonel in the Judge Advocate General Reserve Corps of the U.S. Army. He was a veteran of World War II and received the Bronze Star for valor, the Purple Heart and the Combat Infantryman's badge.

Millbrae Library Will be Closed

Millbrae Library will be closed from December 30 at 9 p.m. until January 18, but area students and residents are advised they may use their library card at any other library in San Mateo County except South San Francisco and Menlo Park libraries.

DC Firemen Go To Court Over 'OT'

Daly City fire fighters went to court last week in an effort to collect overtime pay.

Fire Fighters Union Local 1879 petitioned the Superior Court in Redwood City to order the city to pay overtime for duty averaging more than 63 hours a week.

The petition contends that the city's rules and procedures provide that firemen who work more than an average of 63 hours a week are entitled to overtime pay. The union, the document states, is agreeable to averaging overtime on a yearly basis rather than on a weekly or monthly basis.

The fire fighters ask the court to order the city to pay averaged overtime for 1968 and 1969 and in the future.

A court action brought against Daly City by another union, Municipal Employes Local 919, achieved success yesterday. Presiding Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn directed the city to fill part-time library positions from regular civil service lists. He gave the city six months to conduct civil service exams and fill all such positions in Daly City.

Might Make It

IT LOOKS LIKE we might make it to 1971 yet. Now that 1970 is just about had it, never to be anymore, there must have been some significant events recorded, but darned if we can find them. There was the usual amount of political hot air resulting from campaigns being held around the country.

In San Bruno and South San Francisco the new members of the council appear to be imitating a Russian troika—pulling in different directions.

Over in Daly City, two new councilmen were elected and one "oldtimer" reinstated, the latter in what can only be interpreted as a vote of confidence by the people. Instead of running off at the mouth denouncing each other, as some councilmen in the North County are doing, Daly City Councilman McRobert Stewart and Louis J. Papan are meeting their individual goals quietly (for the most part) and efficiently. They seem to fit what has become known hereabouts as the "Lycett team."

NOT TRUE in San Bruno, where city fathers can't even agree on selection of a city manager. Talk about the Penn Central! San Bruno has its own form of railroads, which was the most common complaint heard during the past few months. Every time one particular San Bruno councilman makes a phone call, it would seem, several press releases are issued. The most recent was a talk with Supersonic Transport builders back in Wichita, where Ted Long went for his CHRISTMAS VACATION.

ONE OF OUR New Year's resolutions will be to inform those councilmen who like to blow their own horns that "Actions Speak Louder Than Words." And we're still waiting for some action. Nuff said on that BELIEVE-IT-OR-NOT, 1970 still was not a year of "Peace on Earth." Oh, sure, we got all those Christmas cards with the "peace" message, but apparently we were the only one who read it. Perhaps this year??? Doubtful; very doubtful.

FRANKLY SPEAKING, we're glad the Holiday Season is drawing to a close. The parties with their one once-a-year-praise and handshakes are fading away. Some are sincere. Others are just plain phony.

SINCERE PARTIES? Glad you asked! Operation Santa Claus isn't a party for those receiving, it is for those giving. More than 70 Daly Cityites showed up Christmas Eve to deliver toys and food to more than 200 needy families. Not a complaint from any of the workers.

Al Belotz again took over the task of Lord and Master and cracked the whip around everyone's head until the goodies were on their way.

For the umpteenth year Peter J. (Pete) Markovich was there. Wheezing, sneezing and nursing a frightful cold (on top of a bad ticker) he "had to be here." Keep Markovich away from helping someone and you might as well shoot him.

It seems we've praised everyone (including ourselves) for the splendid job done on Operation Santa. But more than anyone else, John Muller wins our deepest praise and should win the greatest regards from those who benefit from this truly good Yuletide practice. For the past 20 odd years John has been organizing the operation. He has, in fact, taken time off from work to organize this project. His reward: Few thanks and a scattering of complaints.

Each year he bounces back and shapes up the project again. Last year, John devoted his time again to Operation Santa Claus. In January, less than a month after he insured that some happiness would come into other peoples' lives tragedy struck John Muller—his wife died.

AL JENKIN, tells this one: A ten-year-old girl sat on his knee as he was taking messages for Santa Claus during the Latin Heritage Posada at Jeff High the week before Christmas and asked for $4. "I don't want it for myself Santa," the child explained. "I need it to buy some presents for my brother and sister."

WHAT'S HER NAME??? Little ten-year-old Marianne came by the office again last week with another load of Betty Crocker coupons needed to "purchase" a life-saving kidney machine (we now have two at University of California Medical Center). She would not give her full name and only after close questioning would pretty Marianne tell us she attended the Westlake School in Daly City. It was the child's second load of coupons. She goes from house to house in the community and collects them, Why? "Because I want to save lives." Comment from an onlooker: "There's hope yet." Agreed.

Brown Ring of Sewage Is Sighted

By JOHN CURRY

Linda Mar Beach, at the south end of Pacifica, is an open sewer and a good New Year's resolution might be "Don't go near the beach at Linda Mar, it's dangerous," according to some concerned citizens.

These citizens have issued the warning because there are no signs posted on the beach, between Pedro Point on the south and Rockaway, on the north, to warn of the pollution danger, which they claim are required by the state Public Health and Safety Code.

From a clifftop on Pedro Point one can look down at the large brown ring of inadequately treated sewage coming to the surface less than 200 yards offshore.

On the beach, there are grayish blocks of what appears to be grease. Actually, the citizens say, they're chunks of human waste that left the outfall line in the middle of Pedro Bay and drifted onto the beach.

This is one of the best swimming and surfing beaches in San Mateo County, generally crowded in the summertime and popular all year round with beach enthusiasts. As such, it's mainly for the family tourist trade.

Rubber contraceptive devices seen on the sand and bobbing around in the surf have been flushed down local toilets and have to be carried only a very short distance by the Pedro Bay currents to reappear for all to see, the critics note.

What is being done about this? At the moment, nothing, they say.

Who is responsible? Right now, San Mateo County's Department of Health and Welfare should be, the concerned citizens say.

This isn't a matter of conservation now, they say, but an urgent, immediate public health danger.

According to the Environmental Health Section of Health and Welfare, which conducts monthly water analysis along the county beaches, the pollution count is as much as seven times the maximum level considered safe for humans.

David March of Montara president, of the Committee to Protect Coastal Waters, and Larry R. Green, 623 Chestnut Avenue, San Bruno, a magazine outdoor living writer, say they have documented these pollution levels — after getting what they claim was a "runaround" by county officials in obtaining the documents.

Pollution is measured by the numbers of coliform (human digestive system) bacteria organisms in 100 milliliters of water. The state standard maximum allowable is 1000 per ml.

From this March until July, some of the seven test stations at Linda Mar Beach registered counts of 7000, or seven times the allowable limit. In September and October there were counts of up to 2400, with a low of 45.

The most consistently high-registering spot was the mouth of San Pedro Creek, apparently ripe with runoff and dumpings from agricultural, ranching and residential properties upstream. The stream empties into Pedro Bay about 20 yards south of the home of County Board of Supervisors Chairman Mrs. Jean Fassler.

"She must wear a clothespin on her nose," Green commented. "I walk on the beach and get sick to my stomach."

Several residents of the area have complained about the "filth" and the health hazard also.

Immediate target of the citizen criticism has been Henry Eich, chief of the county Health and Welfare Department's Environmental Health Section, whose view of the situation is a bit different.

"I won't say yea or nea to this," but noted that since the high pollution counts are centered on the mouth of the creek it could result in a "false coliform count."

This means the bacteria count could be from soil runoff from the creek, not sewage from the outfall, he said, adding that the former wouldn't be hazardous to health.

He said his section's superintendent of testing, Rex Goff, had indicated no health hazard but "we're going to pursue it."

"We will post or even quarantine the beach if we find enough evidence of a hazard. We're not going to avoid the issue at all," Eich said.

The city of Pacifica, which operates the sewage treatment plant just behind the dune at Linda Mar Beach, has plans for a large new plant that will handle all the city's sewage needs, to be built in Sharp Park to the north.

But for now the old Pedro Point treatment plant has about one-fifth the needed capacity it needs to do a good job, nearby residents say.

This throws the burden of warning people on the county, which monitors the beach, say March and Green.

Tetanus, typhoid and hepatitis are among the diseases people expose themselves to in conditions like these, they maintain. "If a man wants to swim or surf in that after he's been warned he can do it on his own responsibility," Green said, "but there must be some notice about the health hazard."

THE AREA in question by people concerned about health hazards at Linda Mar Beach is centered around the mouth of San Pedro Creek. Its polluted water and poorly-treated sewage have made it unfit for recreational use, people say. One, Larry R. Green of San Bruno, is shown surveying the foul-smelling tributary which also has become a litter depository. Note tire near the water and cans, shoe and various debris in foreground. Home in background is that of Mrs. Jean Fassler, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. (Post photo)

Pacifica Beach: Open Sewer?

Petards Flourishas 18s Win Vote

By JAMES HALLEY

The nation's business is spotty. Some industries are in decline, some in slump and others in serious difficulty. As usual, however, one or two trades are booming. Of these the most notable is the surge in petard making. Petards are in great demand this season and there will be some catching up to do. For the supply has been about used up in Washington D.C., where there remains an abundance of boisterous hoisters. The cause was the 18 year old vote issue which surprised or confounded everyone except Justice Hugo Black, who may have been the most surprised of all when he first discovered that his one vote would carry the case.

This issue was ideal for the petard industry. The old folks (and that's most of us and certainly a top heavy majority in official Washington) have been confronted with a change in the habits of the young. During our lives a generation broke its ties with centuries of habit and custom and developed a new life style. Along with more superficial mutations, youth harbored dark and dangerous thoughts such as the idea that if a man was good enough to fight and die in a war he was good enough to vote.

Aging America sat back and waited for its elected representatives to do the dragon in. But public officials are a perceptive lot. They have to be if they plan on remaining in office. They know well that every young person is some family's darling, and that each will at some time have a vote. Most importantly they know that everyone loves a politician who loves youth and that the ancient shibboleths of campaign oratory are abandoned at great risk.

The issue was ideal for the ambivalent. Everyone in the political game knew you could be for the 18 year old vote and still never be consumed by it. Everyone knew that a constitutional amendment was required and that ratification by ¾ of the states was beyond reach. The dialogue for youth could go on and on but good old Colorado, Montana, Alabama, North Dakota, Mississippi, Iowa, etc., etc., etc. could be relied on to defeat the measure. The albatross could be slain by other hands.

Then in a surprise move Congress proposed changing the rule by law and not constitutional amendment. There was a brief concerned flurry, but the ambivalent soon calmed down. The good old Supreme Court would come to the rescue because everyone knew that such a law was unconstitutional. The vote in the House of Representatives was huge and many congressmen who voted for the bill may have hurried their own departure from public life. The 18 year old provision was part of a bill that included other fundamental voting rights and in this form was approved by the Senate and signed into law by the President.

This last week the 18 year old vote came to the end of the line. The Court was about to uphold the Constitution. And it did, as a majority of the justices saw it.

And wouldn't you know, the kids can vote and the kids can't vote. Three cheers for Justice Black and two cheers for the rest of the court. In 184 pages of lucid reasoning, the justices explain how two different majorities carried the day.

If the young have wondered how we run things, they must have been most puzzled about the manner in which this victory came about. But, although the way this landmark change was wrought boggles the orderly mind, the nation may have stumbled into a reasonably sensible solution.

The young may vote for Presidents, Senators and Congressmen. These office holders are the people who have a say about wars, and the strong argument for the 18 year old vote is that men who must fight and die in wars should have a voice in deciding whether or not we have them. Some governors and state legislators might like to start a little war or two, but can't. So the right of the young to vote in state and local elections is not of the same burning intensity as the federal question. There is now time for the states to act and their likely extension of the franchise will prove far more successful as an act of local volition than of federal compulsion.

The New Year

New Year's Day, 1971. All over the world there will be parties and entertainments of every nature.

In Japan, people will be gay with ancient customs contributing to the fun. Gateposts will be ornamented with pines and green bamboos, and red lobsters will be hung over doorways. Scarlet tangerine-like fruits will be used for decorations. The pines, bamboos, and lobsters are symbolical of long life, strength, and happiness; the fruits are symbols of prosperity.

For hundreds of years the Japanese have marked New Year's Day by donning new suits and visiting friends. Even strangers accost one another on the streets and extend invitations to parties and entertainments.

To this New Year's Day, people in Scotland still retain the custom of "open house." There is a quaint old superstition among the villagers that he who is first to visit a family in the New Year will be lucky and prosperous throughout the year. Therefore, everyone visits everyone else on New Yar's Eve, with revellers making a scramble to be "first foot," as it is called, when the closks strike twelve. Laughing, singing, feasting is part of the fun.

TO THE FRENCH the New Year is usually a more important holiday than Christmas. It is then that adults exchange gifts, and the doors of every house are flung open for informal visiting and feasting. The New Year celebration in France lasts three days and marks the beginning of the year's social season.

In Germany, where many people believe the New Year holiday originated, there will be feasting and frolicking in a celebration as gay as that found anywhere in the world.

Anciently, the Germans divided the year according to the seasons, with the new year starting at the end of the harvest season and the beginning of winter — usually in the middle of November. To salute the New Year, the ancient Germans gathered around great fires and with joyous feasts laid aside old troubles and worries to welcome in the promise of new bounties.

To the ancient Romans, the New Year celebration symbolized the putting aside of the old life and the taking up of a new—thus originated the custom of making resolutions. The Romans presented one another with branches of trees as tokens of good luck for the coming year. This custom grew even greater after the fall of Rome, with men of the middle ages using decorated branches and whole trees to adorn houses and churches.

OF ALL PEOPLES, the Chinese celebrate their holidays for the New Year with great joy. From time marked in uncounted years they have closed down their shops for a period of seven days. During this period they parade in the streets in brand new clothes, exchanging good wishes with everyone they meet. Sometimes in rural sections they carry tiny ornamented boxes of tea, to present to their friends as gifts, for a box of tea is supposed to invite prosperity not only for him who receives it, but also for the donor.

During 1971, there is still truth to Charles Lamb's statement "No one ever regarded the first of January with indifference—" even the tiredest, most cynical men in the modern world.

For them, someone observed, there is the "same old whistles, same old bells, same old music, same old yells!

"Same old greetings, same old dread, same old temptation, same old head!"

"Same old dinners, same old calls, same old parties, same old balls!"

"Same old flowers, same old frills, same old hopes, same old bells!"

"Same old noises, same bright light, same old crowds stay out all night."

BUT FOR THEM and all people on New Year's 1971, there is also the "Same old brightness, same old cheer, same old Happy Glad New Year!"

Newspapers 'Substantially Misled' in SST Praise, Long Says

Editor, The Post:

For some strange reason, you continue to run stories praising the proposed SST, and I am sure you are doing so in good faith. However, you are being substantially misled, and I think it is grossly unfair to the opponents of this aircraft not to have an opportunity to properly respond to some of the outrageous statistics presented by the Boeing Aircraft Company.

It is my opinion that the SST will not contribute a single thing to our economy or to our well-being, but will, in fact, cause devastating pollution and noise. I refer more specifically to the article done by George Golding on Thursday, December 3, 1970. He states, and I quote, "Military planes have flown at supersonic speeds occasionally creating minor disasters to windows on the ground."

Let's look at the real facts. In St. Louis in 1961, 150 supersonic flights resulted in 5,000 complaints, 1.1624 damage claims and $58,648 in damage payments. In Oklahoma City in 1964, 1,254 flights caused 15,000 complaints, 11,624 damage claims and over $100,000 in damage awards. Forty-nine flights over Chicago in 1965 produced 6,116 complaints, 2,964 damage claims and well over $114,000 paid for damages. This is just to mention a few, but I would suggest it is substantially more than a few occasional minor disasters to windows.

Mr. Golding goes on to state that the aim of the builders is more than to create faster travel, but is to get the rich passenger travel market of the future. This, too, is absurd for several reasons, the least of which is that the leading economists in the United States, which include Torbin of Yale University, Ruppenthal of Stanford University Graduate School of Business, Samuelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Heller of Minnesota, all unequivocally state the SST is an economic joke and at best will only eliminate the market for existing aircraft of which we already dominate the world's market.

You also state that they have received 74 orders and expect to sell as many as 300 SSTs over the years. This is completely unsubstantiated by actual statistics where only 122 airplanes have been spoken for and there has not been a single addition to that list in over two years. And at $40 million apiece, they must sell at least 200 to just break even. And how about the fact that the Los Angeles International Airport and the New York airports have already excluded the landing of SSTs. How about the economic consideration as stated by John Leyton, president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization that, and I quote, "The SST will require the establishment of an entirely new traffic control system." This alone will more than overshadow any economic benefit that might conceivably be realized from the SST.

And what of the noise? To those of us in San Bruno, the SST will make noise three and four times as loud as the loudest commercial jet now in operation. Both groups say, as Mr. Golding quotes, they are "working on the noise." They have told us for years that they are working on the noise, yet more and more lawsuits continue to be filed. In fact, a Los Angeles court recently awarded $700,000 for noise problems. I can only suggest that as taxpayers, we stand to face economic ruin if the SST is ever allowed to operate at San Francisco International Airport.

But more importantly, I think your obligation is to present more than the glorification of the SST. It is to take a close look at not only the pollution and overwhelming noise, but also the fallacies of the very weak economic arguments. It is almost ironic that adjacent to your recent article, a release from James Carr's office appeared in which Mr. Carr commented on the downward trend of air traffic consistent, and I quote, "with the national traffic decline being experienced generally as a result of the overall economic climate," when in fact the SST represents probably the single biggest inflationary package before the Congress currently. While the airlines are searching for ways to pay for the $23 million 747, we are investing $3 billion to force them to find ways to raise $40 million a copy for the SST. Somehow it seems unjust.

THEODORE H. LONG,
San Bruno.

1969-70 Not Best Offensive Year in College Basketball

LE PACINI

Sportscripts

And now for our first (and, with any luck, the last) — annual college basketball quiz:

1) Who introduced basketball to the University of Chicago?

2) Who won the first intercollegiate basketball championship?

3) Who won the first intercollegiate game?

4) Who shot the longest field goal, and what length did it travel?

5) Dick Groat, former Pittsburgh shortstop great, was such a fantastic basketball player at Duke that he at one time held the collegiate three year scoring mark—true or false?

6) Who had a better shooting percentage from the floor last year, Pete Maravich or Calvin Murphy?

7) What college has produced the most consensus All Americans?

8) What college has the best all time winning percentage?

9) UCLA has one of the 20 top all time winning percentages, true or false?

10) USC has a better all-time winning percentage than Cal, true or false?

Answers appear at the bottom of this column with five correct and you qualify as a well informed college basketball FAN. Six right qualifies you as slightly better than the guy who got five right. Seven right, you're an expert. Eight right, you're a lucky expert. Nine right, you're a genius. Get them all right and you take over the column next week.

DESPITE SUCH SHARP SHOOTERS as Maravich and Murphy, 1969-70 was NOT the best offensive year in college basketball history. That distinction belongs to 1966, when each game produced an average of 155.2 points, both teams combined. Last year the tote was 155.1.

Last season did, however, produce the all-time high for field goal shooting percentage, 44.2, and for combined average of field goal and free throws, 51.0. The all-time free throw percentage mark also belongs to 1966, when shooters rimmed an average of 69.4 of 'em.

WE SHOULD HAVE SAVED this one for our quiz, because it would have virtually assured that we would still be writing the column next week.

We'll bet that if we asked who held all the major college rebound records, you'd say either Wilt Chamberlain or Lew Alcindor, or both, or maybe even Bill Russell.

And you'd be wrong. LaSalle's Tom Gola (later a Warrior) holds the three and four year career records. Walt Dukes (Seton Hall) still holds the one season record, and a guy named Bill Chambers holds the one game record, a fantastic 51. Chambers did it again Virginia in 1953 for William and Mary. And finally, that internationally known basketball star Charles Slack, has the best season and career average rebounds per game. In 1955, while playing for Marshall, he averaged 25.6 rebounds a contest. From '53-56, he averaged 21.8.

Oh yes, Chamberlain stands 21st among the all-time college career rebounders. Alcindor doesn't even make the top 35. Bill Russell easily outclasses that duo among the collegians, standing sixth against the all-time top rebounders.

CHAMBERLAIN'S inability to hit on free throws becomes more mystifying when one considers — as has been so widely publicized — that Chamberlain had relatively little trouble shooting them in college — 61.9 as compared to his pro FT percentage entering this season of 52.1. But what makes Chamberlain's freebie ineptitude even more exasperating is the fact that three of his greatest pro pivot rivals, none of them any great shakes as collegiate free throwers, all IMPROVED when they hit the pro ranks. Russell went from 55 percent to 56.3; Elvin Hayes from 59 per cent to 65.4; and Alcindor from 62.8 to 65.3.

CHAMBERLAIN, you know, has posted some fantastic records, but one that hardly anyone talks about is his durability record. Going into this season he had played a total of 37,220 minutes. That's rough duty even washing dishes, but playing that much of NBA basketball has to prove a guy's manlihood, if nothing else.

THERE"S NO USE KEEPING YOU IN SUSPENSE ANY LONGER.

Here are the answers to the quiz. Read 'em and weep:

1) Amos Alonzo Stagg — yes, that's right, the grand old man of football — introduced basketball to the University of Chicago. Believe it or not, Stagg had been a fellow faculty member at Springfield College of James Naismith, who taught Amos everything he knew about basketball.

2) Yale won the first intercollegiate championship by annexing the newly formed Eastern League (which included Princeton, Columbia, Cornell and Harvard) in 1901, after having been the first college basketball team to play intersectional games, when it toured the Midwest the year before. The rival New England League, incidentally, included Amherst, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Trinity, and Williams.

3) The Minnesota State School of Agriculture beat Hamline, 9-3, to win the first intercollegiate basketball game.

4) Alabama's George Linn shot an 84 foot, 11 inch field goal against North Carolina in 1955. George wasn't just lucky. He was also good. He averaged 18.9 points a game that season. Linn's FG was just a throwaway as the buzzer sounded, however, and really meant nothing. Probably the most "meaningful" long field goal in basketball history was the 55 footer swished in by Earnie Calverley in 1946 for Rhode Island against Bowling Green in the last second of play. It got Rhode Island into the NIT finals against Kentucky. Calverly couldn't come close to duplicating his heroics, however, and Kentucky, as was usual in those days, won the championship.

5) True. At the conclusion of the 1952 season, Dick Groat set a three year scoring record of 1,186 points, but Clyde Lovellette, whose Kansas squad finished the season later than Groat's Duke team, beat Groat's record by two points.

6) Neither Maravich nor Murphy outshot each other from the floor last year. Each had a FG percentage of 43.8.

7) Kentucky has produced the most consensus All Americans — seven, count 'em, seven (Ralph Beard twice, Cliff Hagan twice, and Alex Groza, Bill Spivey, Johnny Cox, Cotton Nash, and Dan Issel).

8) You guessed it. Kentucky has the best all-time winning percentage — .762.

9) False. UCLA stands 21st among all-time winners, with a percentage of .643.

10) Another fooler. False. Cal has the identical winning percentage as USC, .618. That's good for a tie for 38th on the all-time list.

All right, you soreheads. Here's a bonus question. If you get it, you can throw out your score on the above test, whatever it may be, and still proclaim yourself a sports whiz. Ready? What collegiate team has led the nation in defense for the past three seasons?

Give up. You'll never get it. It's Army, and personally we couldn't be more delighted. After all, if Army can't muster a good-defense, what's the Point.

Serra Edges Rams, Third in Tourney

Thanks to Santa Claus and the spirit of Christmas, the Westmoor High School basketball team could sleep in a little late Friday.

In a battle of attrition, coach Tony Giammona's cagers fought both fatigue and the Serra Padres for third place in the first annual Canada Holiday classic Wednesday.

The Rams lost both as Serra prevailed, 67-57.

The Rams surrendered their composure in the final period as it was their sixth game in seven days.

"We were extremely tired," commented Giammona.

Elsewhere in the tourney, St. Francis, as expected, won the title with 62-54 triumph over Saratoga. In the battle for fifth place, Homestead shaded South San Francisco, 86-82, while Ravenswood galloped past Sequoia, 81-55, for seventh place.

The Padres parlayed a patient offense and some fantastic shooting from the floor to explode for 27 points in the final quarter and overcome a 42-40 deficit.

The Rams, forced to foul in the late going, watched on as Serra's Tim O'Leary converted nine of 10 charity tosses in the closing minutes. Serra, which hit 21 of 29 shots from the floor, also made 25 of 37 free throw attempts.

In the South San Francisco-Homestead game, the Warriors were guilty of missing some easy layups which eventually cost them the victory. Mike Young and Gene Mackey paced the Warriors with 22 and 20 points, respectively.

Peninsula Cagers Triumph

It was Christmas time but Mid-Peninsula League schools were far from a giving mood Thursday afternoon.

All three MPL teams came away with practice victories in impressive fashion as Hillsdale pulled away from Polytechnic, 61-56, Capuchino blasted Lincoln of San Francisco for the second time this year, 81-66, and San Mateo rallied in the second half to down visiting Oceana, 56-36.

Cap won its 10th game of the year against just one loss in this rematch of the Lincoln game in the Riordan Tournament. This time the Mustangs were even more impressive in handling the SF Mustangs as two players cracked the 20-point mark — Steve Newberry with 27 and Keith Hernandez with 26.

The game was nearing the half when Cap pulled away from a two-point lead and upped its margin to five. Then Cap pulled even further with Newberry and Dowling hitting from medium range and Lincoln never got closer than seven.

John Morton's tip with 2:50 left gave Hillsdale its first lead since the early going at 53-51 and the Knights graduallly pulled away from Poly in the final two minutes. Vance Schram and Ed Kertel had sparked the Knight comeback with a streak of outside shooting that eventually built up an eight-point bulge.

Schram hit a 10-foot baseline jumper and then stole the inbound pass to add another layin upping the Hillsdale lead to 59-53. Kertel's two free throws with 16 seconds left put the game out of reach.

Owen Woods and Hollister Savidge combined for 41 points as the Bearcats came alive after intermission to outscore the Sharks, 34-16. In a slow-paced first half the Sharks stayed within two at 22-20 but the Bearcats began running in the third period against a reserve-weak Oceana five.

Home Game Is No Help

After two and a half weeks of road games, College of San Mateo's basketball team expected a better homecoming than that which greeted them December 22.

Joe Gallagher scored 52 of West Valley's 112 points to 89 for the host Bulldogs as CSM gym records toppled.

Gallagher, a 6-4, 185 pound sophomore center was unstoppable as he wiped out the 39-point effort by pro star Shaler Halimon when he played for Imperial Valley College in the 1965 state JC tourney at CSM.

It also marked the first time a visiting team has tallied more than 100 points at CSM and the first time two squads have combined for more than 200 points (201) in the Bulldog gym. Former visiting team and combined team records came in a 96-95 CSM win over Chabot in 1967.

Coach Bobby Pounds found his Bulldogs rusty last night. "We had too many days off," he noted, referring to a five-day break since an eliminating 121-117 overtime loss at the Modesto JC tourney to the host Pirates.

San Mateo turned the ball over 19 times that game and could get only 30 of the game's 75 rebounds. Gallagher took 14 for West Valley. The Bulldogs did sink 44 per cent of their floor shots, but that couldn't compare to West Valley's 62 per cent night.

And Gallagher was a fantastic 22 out of 30, playing only approximately three-fourths of the game because of foul trouble.

He came back in with five minutes left, however, and netted ten of West Valley's next 13 points to reach the 50 point plateau with 2:22 remaining.

Gallagher finally retired after getting number 52 on a jumper from the top perimeter of the key with just less than a minute to play.

Goll finished as CSM's high scorer with 21 points, while center Nick Wilkinson netted 19 and grabbed 11 rebounds.

CSM, now 1-8, next hosts southern San Mateo JC District rival Canada (5-6) Saturday night—before entering the Delta tournament in Stockton on Monday.

Skyline Cagers Defeat Hayward

Skyline College cagers continued their voyage towards a best-ever season with an 85-76 victory over Hayward State JV's on the winner's floor last week.

For the upstart Trojans it was their eighth victory in ten outings. Skyline doesn't play again until they visit Chabot next Tuesday night.

"Again we were highly successful on the backboards," commented Rilliet, "as we outrebounded them, 57-37."

With Matt Kriletich and John Burrus leading the scoring attack, Skyline jumped out to a quick ten-point lead, 14-4, with the game barely three minutes old.

The locals continued to develop their lead throughout the game and held a 19-point advantage, 76-57, with just eight minutes to play.

However, visiting Hayward then put on a rally which pulled them to within nine points of Skyline, and Rilliet was forced to insert his key players.

Kriletich then converted three successive one-and-one situations from the foul line to spirit Skyline away from further trouble.

Flames Strike D.C. Home

Fire caused an estimated $43,000 damage to a two-story Daly City home and its contents last Wednesday.

Two firemen were hurt fighting the blaze.

Daly City Fire Department Battalion Chief Mel Hanson said the 8:25 p.m. blaze started in the basement of the Lloyd H. Leatherwood home at 20 Longview Drive when gasoline fumes were ignited by a natural gas water heater pilot light.

Leatherwood was draining gasoline from a day-old minibike about a foot from the water heater, Chief Hanson said. The fumes ignited and flame flared up as Leatherwood's son, Lloyd, Jr., 13, drew hot water while doing the dishes in the kitchen, Hanson explained.

The fire quickly spread from the basement-garage area to the hallway, kitchen and living room upstairs. Flame also burned up into the attic.

Flames spread through the home's furnace ducting system and burned some mattresses in bedroom, Hanson said. There was major smoke and heat damage throughout.

The Leatherwoods lost three chinchillas valued at $200 each, a $1200 motorcycle, the minibike, an $1800 Mercedez-Benz and a pickup truck valued at $1600.

Also destroyed or damaged were tools that Leatherwood uses in repairing and maintaining pinball machines, record players and other types of equipment, Chief Hansen said.

Hansen estimated structural loss at $24,000 and contents at $19,000.

Some valuable shotguns and rifles were damaged as well.

The family's pet daschund Jo-Jo was found dead of apparent smoke inhalation beneath a kitchen table.

Fire Captain Gene Klingler was treated at Mary's Help Hospital for first and second degree burns of the face, neck and left hand. He was caught in a backflash at the rear of the building.

Captain Maurice Sciaroni wrenched his back and right shoulder when he fell off a backyard embankment several feet.

Mrs. Leatherwood and the couple's 16-year-old son Terry were shopping when the fire started.

Firemen fought the blaze for more than three hours.

PACIFICA SCHOOL children held their annual Christmas programs just before the holiday vacation. Crespi seventh and eighth graders (above, left) dramatized the "Twelve Days of Christmas," while the upper grade chorus sang. In costumed production were Janet and Jill Puskarich as turtle doves, Tommy Borg as drummer, Frank Gasper, the pear tree — with partridge Bill Amable on his shoulders. At right: the Sanchez School program carolers, Raiina Belland, Ryan Bjerkhoel, Roger Gay and Valerie Volker.

FORMER PATIENT (center) David Talivaa, age 5, of Colma, with his sisters (left) Stephanie, 9, and (right) Christina, 6, returns to St. Francis Memorial Hospital for a chat with Santa Claus and singer Jack Jones. The event was a reunion of more than 30 former patients and their families with the staff of the hospital's Bothin Burn Treatment Center. The festivities also helped to celebrate the third anniversary of the Burn Center, which has treated nearly 200 severely burned patients from all over California, Oregon, and Nevada, since it was opened in December, 1967.

Two D.C. Fires; $24,000 Damages

Two Daly City fires Thursday resulted in an estimated loss of $24,000. Arson may have caused one.

Fire officials said someone may have set a blaze in a garage at 737 Templeton Avenue. There were no signs of faulty wiring or gas appliances to cause a fire.

The fire was reported at 9:24 a.m. Firemen were forced to chop a hole in an apartment house wall to utilize their smoke injector.

Authorities said four families suffered smoke inhalation. Total content loss was reported at $3,750 and building damage was estimated at $8,500.

In a second blaze, Daly City firemen were called to an apartment house at 23 Third Avenue.

Resident Modesto A. Pina said he smelled smoke. Firemen searched his apartment and traced the fire to a closet. Further investigation revealed the fire had started in a lower level apartment and made its way up an exhaust flue between the walls.

Firemen said a cooking pot on a stove in the apartment below was the cause of the blaze. The fire burned walls, ceiling, attic and roof. Firemen also had to take down kitchen cabinets to fight the blaze.

Content loss is estimated at $1,500 and damage to the building was estimated at $11,000 by fire officials.

Meanwhile a garage fire in San Bruno yesterday resulted in an estimated loss of $1,700 in building and contents at 2005 Fleetwood Dr. Firemen said the fire was probably caused by an overheated furnace.
